

Greeks Seize New Positions; Italians Continue Retreat

Report Gains Against Foes On All Fronts

Athens—(AP)—Greek forces were reported today to have captured important new positions after inflicting heavy losses on units of the Italian division in a hand-to-hand battle.

This, apparently, was in the northern sector of the Albanian front, where the whole region round Lake Ochrida was said to have been cleaned up and the pace of the Greek drive generally accelerated.

It is aimed toward Elbasani, 25 miles from Tirana, Albania's capital.

On the southern sector also, the Italians were said to be retreating toward Chimara, with the Greeks pressing hard on their heels toward the port of Valona.

Today's Greek high command communiqué declared tersely "we have advanced further," and a spokesman filled in these details:

Right Wing Retreats

"The entire army of the Italians' right wing was withdrawing Monday toward the north and northeast of Port Edda and Argirocastro, while its rear guard was harassed and pursued by our advancing troops.

"More to the north the enemy has been compelled, after a fierce attack by our troops, to abandon important strategic positions and withdraw in full flight. Still more to the north, units of our army have been able to dislodge the enemy's forces which until Sunday stubbornly defended peaks and heights very important from a strategic viewpoint.

"These forces were obliged not only to retreat but to take to flight. If these forces have been able to avoid annihilation it will be due to bad weather which has prevailed.

Two Greek Drives

"Still more to the north other units of the enemy also are in flight.

"The Greek advance apparently is divided into two twin drives.

Exact positions of the Greek advance units were withheld as a military secret.

The British Royal Air Force issued a communiqué at Athens saying that British fliers carried out an "offensive in the vicinity of Valona," where bombs hit "the south jetty and buildings near the harbor."

The communiqué said there was no Italian fighter opposition, and all the R. A. F. aircraft returned safely.

Move to 'Draft' Tax Exempt Cash

Treasury Asks Support For Wholly Taxable New U. S. Bond Issue

Washington—(AP)—The government invited investors today to enlist in the national preparedness drive by subscribing to a fully taxable $500,000,000 issue of defense notes—the first wholly taxable federal issue in United States history.

"People who have the money should be delighted to pay taxes when the money goes for national defense," declared Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

He characterized tax-exempt bonds as "slacker money" at a press conference yesterday and said it was unfair for a "man who owns $1,000,000 in tax-free obligations to spend his winter in Palm Beach and

Royal Couple Lands at Miami Amid Applause

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—The duchess of Windsor underwent a major dental operation beginning at 1:05 p. m. today, and Dr. Horace L. Carlee reported she reacted "promptly and favorably."

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—The duchess of Windsor, looking smart and chipper despite a seriously-infected tooth, arrived today with her royal husband for a major dental operation.

The duke and his American-born duchess arrived aboard the yacht Southern Cross and went through the formalities of receiving dignitaries and talking with newsmen before they sped to St. Francis hospital for preliminary X-rays.

A crowd of police lines and blocked traffic in Biscayne boulevard to get a glimpse of the royal couple as they left the same pier where President Roosevelt embarked a week before for a Caribbean cruise.

When the Windsors appeared on deck, a roar of applause rose from the crowd.

As the duke and duchess left the yacht, steamships in the harbor sounded their whistles and coast guard planes roared a salute overhead.

The duchess appeared well and in good spirits as she stood beside Edward at his press conference. Neither referred to the fact that it was the fourth anniversary of his abdication from the British throne.

She was dressed in a smart fall two-piece ensemble of navy blue and blue felt cap with mercury wings of white-tipped blue.

Answering questions as to how she was feeling, the duke commented:

"I think her appearance here answers that."

He declined to discuss the British war effort, remarking:

"I formerly was a free lance, but after all, I'm an official of the government now."

The royal party was greeted by Mrs. Mark Byron III, daughter of Governor Fred P. Cone, Stephen Childs, British embassy representative, and Mrs. Childs, mayors and chamber of commerce heads of the Miami area, and a small group of other officials.

Girl, Youth Found Dead in Parked Car

Eldorado, Ill.—(AP)—Pearl Harrelson, 15, a high school sophomore and Charles Tate, 18, an NYA worker, were found dead in an automobile parked in a wood six miles northeast of this city today by two hunter hunters.

The hunters, Frank Dardeen and Ray Carner of Eldorado, both were uncles of the dead girl, and Deputy Sheriff Ivan Wilson said Dardeen told him they had been missing since last Saturday night, but their families, believing they had eloped, had not notified county law enforcement officials.

Wilson said a garden hose led from the exhaust pipe into the car and both bodies were brilliant red from carbon monoxide poison.

Threefold Probe Is Launched at Detroit Into Bribery Charges

Detroit—(AP)—A triple investigation was underway today into charges that "various" city officials had been tendered bribes in connection with the award of contracts for the $8,330,000 Herman Gardens housing project.

Inquiries into the charges, contained originally in a $150,000 damage suit filed in Cook county (Chicago) superior court by the Belsan Plastering company of Chicago, were ordered by Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, Wayne County Prosecutor Paul W. Voorhies and the city council. A grand jury investigation also was asked by Councilman John Hamilton.

The superior court suit named two Chicago firms, the Lipman Construction company, and A. Smith and company, who were awarded the general contract, as defendants. The Belsan company charged it had not been given a sub-contract by the two firms as previously agreed upon and alleged there was a "pay-off" to "various politicians in Detroit" in obtaining the general contract.

Two Fatally Burned In Illinois Tragedy

Waukegan, Ill.—(AP)—A man and woman, employed as domestics in the home of Mrs. Lydia Davis, were burned fatally today when a can of naphtha exploded as they were cleaning furniture in a garage behind the Davis home.

The victims, who died in the Waukegan hospital, were Marjorie Juspech, 23, a cook, and William Anthony, 30, a houseman.

First Lady Raps 'Racket' Setup Of Some Unions

Says Memberships Should be Available To Needy Applicants

Washington—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that "it is not a racket" a union would adjust its initiation charges in order to make membership available to those seeking entrance without the cash to pay.

The first lady made the assertion at a hearing of the house committee on migration, where she went on the stand after the wife of an itinerant electrician testified that her husband was unable to work on army construction at Ft. George G. Meade, Md., because he lacked $300 for the initiation fee of an "electrical union."

Mrs. Roosevelt listened attentively throughout the recital and after she had completed her own extemporaneous statement she was asked by Representative Sparkman (D-Ala.) for her views on the situation described.

"Was that an A. F. of L. or CIO union?" Mrs. Roosevelt asked. Sparkman said he did not know.

Says 'Rackets' Exist

"There is a division in the electrical unions," Mrs. Roosevelt went on, "and I suppose also that in certain groups there are rackets and I suppose that that may be one of them."

"I do know that where there is work—and if it is not a racket—there are possibilities of adjustment."

Resume Talks on British Finances

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau and Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury, spent two hours last night discussing Britain's financial resources in the privacy of the Morgenthau home.

The meeting, scheduled originally for the treasury building, ended without any statement from either official. Indications were, however, that further Anglo-American conversations were planned on the financial problems which confront England because of the war.

It was Morgenthau's second talk with Sir Frederick since the British expert arrived last week, and the American treasury chief made plain before last night's meeting that "there will be no commitments" as far as the United States is concerned during the conversations.

"The administration," he said, "has not made up its mind yet" on the subject of considering the question of financial aid to Great Britain.

Sir Frederick, he said, had not made any requests—"formal or informal"—for such help.

Freighter Is Sunk Despite Prize Crew

London—(AP)—The 5,033-ton German freighter Idarwald sank after a prize crew placed aboard by the British cruiser Diomedes failed in an effort to prevent her scuttling by her own crew, an official announcement said today.

The German crew of 45 now are prisoners aboard the Diomedes, it was disclosed.

Naval circles, elaborating on the brief official statement, pointed to United States reports that the Idarwald was set afire by the Germans and these quarters said it was presumed they also opened her sea-cocks.

City's Poor Again Ask Help of Good Fellows

The effort that is being made in Appleton to organize a council of social agencies to coordinate the work of the various organizations engaged in relief and welfare work is the most conclusive evidence that there still is a tremendous private relief problem in spite of the assistance that is given by state and federal governments. If all the relief cases were taken care of by public agencies there would be no need for private relief, and no need to coordinate their efforts.

Thus it must be apparent to all Good Fellows that their help is tremendously necessary to provide some sort of a Christmas to the many Appleton families that need help through this cold winter.

For the sixteenth year, the Appleton Post-Crescent today is beginning its annual appeal to Good Fellows to contribute to the Christmas basket fund which is administered by the Appleton Relief and Welfare councils through its cooperating agencies. Every penny collected will go for a real relief—not a cent goes for overhead of any kind.

The money is distributed by the agencies which make up the Relief Welfare council. They are the Salvation Army, the Associated Lutheran Charities, Pythian Sisters, Appleton Apostolate, Auxiliary of the American Legion, American Red Cross, Auxiliary of Veterans of For-

Churchill Tells About English Drive in Egypt

Attack on Italian Position 'Successful,' He Informs Commons

Cairo, Egypt—(AP)—Latest reports from the western desert said today the British had cut the Italian main lines of communications and had isolated a large number of troops in a wide encircling movement.

London—(AP)—Twenty-two Italian planes were shot down over the western Egyptian desert yesterday, the air ministry announced today.

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, reporting today on the "preliminary phase" of the British attack on Italian positions in Egypt, said that they had been "successful" and disclosed that British forces had reached the coast between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq.

Churchill, replying to a question, declined to say whether this meant that the Italians at Sidi Barrani were cut off. (Buqbuq is 35 miles west of Sidi Barrani, about halfway between that town and the Libyan-Egyptian border.)

He said the Royal Air Force aid for Greece which had proved "most important" in the Greek victories had caused a temporary postponement of the attack against the Italians in Egypt in which "free French" forces had cooperated with the army of the Nile.

"It is too soon," the prime minister said, "to attempt to forecast either the scope or the result of the considerable operations which are in progress. But we can at any rate say that the preliminary phase has been successful."

Attack Coastal Areas

The house cheered wildly as he concluded his report with the statement:

"We shall no doubt receive further news shortly."

Churchill said the British Mediterranean fleet and the air force "are, of course, cooperating closely with the army," and added that British warships have bombarded the various coastal positions of the Italian forces, particularly Maktila and Sidi Barrani.

He also announced substantial increases in the coastal command air-

Ballot on War Again Is Issue

Nye and Capper Plan Vigorous Drive Next Session of Congress

Washington—(AP)—Two Republican senators—Nye of North Dakota and Capper of Kansas—declared today they would make a vigorous fight in the next session for enactment of a war referendum legislation, but there were immediate indications that such a move would encounter strong opposition.

The legislation, opposed by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, would submit to the states for ratification a constitutional amendment providing that no troops could be sent outside the western hemisphere without a popular vote in favor of war.

A similar resolution bogged down last spring in a house committee.

Nye told reporters he hoped to get "a substantial number" of senators to sign the legislation and Capper predicted that more than twenty would sponsor it.

Senators Truman (D-Mo.), Johnson (D-Colo.) and Brooks (R-Ill.) expressed opposition to the legislation on the grounds it would impede the government in times of crisis and generally weaken the nation's hand in foreign policies.

Buy New Proving Ground for Tanks

Washington—(AP)—The war department announced today that a new proving ground for army tanks and other weapons would be established in southern Indiana just north of the city of Madison.

Officials said that agents selected by the quartermaster corps had been ordered to proceed with the purchase of approximately 50,000 acres of land.

The proving ground will be operated by commissioned officers and approximately 800 civilian employees of the ordinance department.

The department's announcement said that negotiations for the construction of the necessary buildings now were in progress, and would be announced in the near future when completed.

20,000 More Reserve Officers Face Call

Washington—(AP)—The war department announced today that it now appeared it would be necessary to order approximately 20,000 additional reserve officers to extended active duty before next June 30.

By the end of this month, the army said it expected to have almost 30,000 reserve officers on active duty as a result of the tremendous expansion of the nation's land forces.

"In view of the constantly-changing situation," the department said, "it appears to be impracticable to give individual reserve officers definite information as to the exact dates they will be called for active duty. However all corps area and department commanders and chiefs of branches have been directed to provide reserve officers under their jurisdiction with as much advance notice as possible."

Several Injured in Train Derailment

Atlanta—(AP)—Several passengers, including the president of the railroad, were injured today when a Southern railway passenger train was derailed about 14 miles south of Atlanta.

Officials of the line here said that E. E. Norris, Southern president, suffered a broken leg and scalp lacerations when two private cars and an observation car overturned after leaving the rails.

O. B. Keister, general manager of the Southern, had an arm broken, officials said, and W. F. Cooper, superintendent of the Atlanta division, was knocked unconscious.

First reports indicated that an open switch at the foot of a grade caused the accident, which occurred near the village of Ellenwood, Ga.

The train, the Ponce de Leon, was en route from Chicago to Florida.

Dies Group and Justice Bureau in Agreement on Future Activities

Committee to Limit Probes to Cases Not Requiring Court Action

Washington—(AP)—Attorney General Jackson said today he had reached a "working agreement" under which the Dies committee will confine its disclosures in its investigation of un-American activities to matters which it feels are unlikely to justify criminal prosecution.

The justice department and Representative Voorhis (D-Calif.), representing the house committee in negotiations with Jackson, jointly made public an exchange of letters setting out the gist of their discussions.

Jackson said he would "be satisfied to have your committee determine for itself whether a set of facts which it has developed should be referred to this department for prosecution or should be disclosed in aid of formulation of legislation to better the situation."

Commenting that conflicts might appear in some cases, the attorney general said that he did not believe "that we can, or need to, work out in advance a formula which will cover such unpredictable situations."

2 Spies Sent to Death in Britain

First Announcement Of Executions Since Start of Conflict

London—(AP)—Two German spies were executed today at Pentonville prison.

The official announcement of the execution identified the two as Jose Waldborg, a German citizen born at Mainz, and Karl Meier, a Dutch subject of German origin born at Koblenz. It said they had been arrested soon after they arrived in England, but the date was not given.

It was the first announcement since the war started that spies had been executed.

The two German agents were convicted at the central criminal court Nov. 22 under the treachery act.

Waldborg, 25, and Meier, 24, were accused of having a radio transmitter which they erected in secluded spots in the countryside at night.

The men, British authorities said, apparently had instructions to pose as refugees from German-occupied territory and to move about the country, picking up whatever military information they could.

They were said to have been supplied with large sums of money, all in pound notes.

81-Year-Old Man Denies Guilt in Shooting Case

Rhineland—(AP)—William "Joe" Gribble, 81-year-old Minnecqua resident, pleaded innocent yesterday when arraigned in county court on a charge of wounding Harvey Richardson, 14, also of Minnecqua.

He was ordered to trial before Judge H. F. Steele in county court Dec. 13. Gribble said he would waive a jury trial.

The state charges Gribble shot the boy in the right leg with Richardson's rifle when the youth put it down to look at a trap.

Richardson testified that Gribble shot him after accusing him of stealing a pistol from Gribble's shack.

Re-Armament Needs 'Equitable Distribution,' Roosevelt Says

Baltimore—(AP)—President Roosevelt declared today that effective re-armament of the nation requires, in addition to mobilization of men and munitions, "an equitable distribution of the wealth from our unparalleled resources."

This statement was made in a presidential message read before the twenty-second annual convention which was considering new proposals designed to give farmers a larger share of the national income.

Mr. Roosevelt told the 4,000 farmer-delegates that the second World War, like the first, was having an injurious effect upon the economy of the world.

"But out of this war already has emerged," he said, "a clearer realization of the value of democracy and the danger to it from unbridled force and aggression. Using the democratic processes, this nation is arming to preserve freedom and to see to it that the enslavement of millions of human beings will pass like the nightmare that it is."

The president said the nation, in this crisis, could count upon the federation and farmers everywhere.

"To re-arm effectively, however, means more than men and munitions. It means an equitable distribution of the wealth from our unparalleled material resources, help for the underprivileged, security for workers and farmers and what-

Calls Self Champion of 'Have-Nots'

Berlin—(AP)—Adolf Hitler reasserted Germany's will to victory and his confidence that nothing in the world could defeat her in a speech of one hour and 31 minutes today before munitions workers.

"Our capacity for work is our gold, our capital, and with it we could defeat the entire world," he declared.

Conflict in the world, he said, is a conflict between "haves" and "have-nots."

He opened no new prospects as to the immediate future except that the fight would continue relentlessly.

In the war he said "we stand fortified against every eventuality."

"England may do what she will—she will sustain harder hits with each weapon."

"Whatever happens," he declared later, "Germany will be victorious."

He accused that great strategist Churchill of deciding to launch "unrestricted air warfare" with an attack on Freiburg.

He said, "I didn't want to attack anything except military objectives," and added:

"Didn't Miss Bus"

"I waited one month for them to cease this sort of combat. I waited two and three months. But now we are conducting war as they wanted it."

He taunted the British with talking "about my missing bus. Well, I got there just long enough ahead to climb aboard before the British. Wherever the German soldier stands, nobody else can get."

Hitler got a round of applause from his audience when he said "the time for the final struggle is determined by us. I am always careful. . . . We can afford to wait. The German people will appreciate it more if I wait and thereby save lives."

"... The world must recognize," he said, "that there can be no defeat in Germany, either military or economic, due to long duration" of the war.

"I am not a man who, when once the fight is taken up, drops it. In my lexicon, there is not the word capitulation. I don't seek a fight, but once it is forced on me I will conduct it so long as there is a breath of life in me."

Sure of Support

"I can conduct it today because I know the entire German people stand behind me."

"Only fools can think there can be any rift among us," he said later.

His speech was broadcast throughout Germany, in German-occupied territory, Slovakia, Hungary and Italy.

He contrasted German socialism with British, French and American capitalism and said the present conflict was one between two philosophies of life, that of the "haves" and "have-nots."

No power on earth can remove the German armed forces from Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium or France against their will, he thundered to his cheering audience.

He explained he had set himself up as a champion of a "have-not" Germany and attacked democracies as nations ruled by capitalists.

The British are fighting, he said, because they know defeat would spell the defeat of capitalism, of family privilege, and of gold.

The conflict now, he said, is between gold and labor—Germany representing labor.

He maintained that Germany never would go under.

Germany's fight is one for the future, he said, "when a beautiful reich will be constructed."

The fuhrer arrived exactly at noon (4 a. m. C. S. T.) at the munitions plant in Greater Berlin. The plant's name and location for the time being were withheld for military reasons.

Introduced by Goebbels

Robert Ley, chief of the German labor front, and General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command of the armed forces, greeted him at the entrance.

As Hitler went to the rostrum he was hailed loudly by the workers. The rostrum was erected atop huge steel blocks.

Hitler was introduced by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, who said all Germany, and especially the workers, were listening.

"I speak very seldom now," Hitler began, "first because I have very little time."

"The struggle is one between two worlds."

"I want first to discuss western Europe."

"Here we find 85,000,000 Germans, 46,000,000 English, 45,000,000 Italians and 37,000,000 French."

"Forty-six million Englishmen control 40,000,500 square kilometers, the French only 10,000,000, the Italians one-half million, while 95,000,000 Germans have as foundation for living only 600,000 square kilometers."

"Hitler then traced German history from the Thirty Years' war onward, stressing what he called dynastic selfishness and other factors

Decide to Form Tax Research Body in State

Commerce Group to Study 'High Taxes' And Report to Solons

Madison —(P)— Secretaries and directors of local chambers of commerce voted yesterday to set up a tax research bureau to investigate the problem of "high taxes" and to make recommendations to the 1941 legislature.

A resolution to create the bureau was sponsored by R. O. Wiperman, of Milwaukee, legislative counsel for the state chamber of commerce.

The group adopted two other resolutions. One pledged cooperation with the state and national defense councils. The other urged the United States War department to use Camp McCoy near Sparta as a year around military site.

Action on the tax question followed a general discussion of that subject.

Paul N. Reynolds, executive director of the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, advocated a three point program to "re-balance" the state budget, adopt a budget system that would include all revenues and expenditures of the state and levy "direct and painful" taxes to meet all expenditures. Reynolds listed the highway and conservation departments as two state agencies spending large sums not included in the budget.

Raps Funds Diversion
C. R. Fiss, president of the Oshkosh Chamber of Commerce criticized the diversion of highway funds. He charged the Hell administration continued the diversion policy in violation of a campaign promise and accused the governor of partiality in the distribution of highway money.

Fiss said if the state did not want to build more roads highway taxes should be reduced.

Wiperman said diversion of road funds was justified because the state had spent $1,100,000,000 on highways in the last 28 years while motorists had contributed only $500,000,000 toward the cost. The balance, he said, had been placed "on the backs of property owners."

Prof. F. H. Elwell, head of the University of Wisconsin Commerce Department, asked support of a request before the legislature for funds to finance a business research department at the university.

New Taxes Necessary
Reynolds told the chamber members that new state taxes would be necessary even if there were no increases in appropriations next year. Stating that several governmental units distribute large sums of money in no way governed by the budget, Reynolds said:

"The governor's budget, for which appropriation requests have just been heard and on which the legislature will act, covers only about one-third of the total spending activities of the state. Highway and conservation funds are two examples of many large spending activities which are not included in the budget."

"If the budget embraced all state functions, the governor and the legislature would be able to spread available tax revenues where they are most needed and provide a more flexible system of state finance."

Endorsing Governor Heil's reorganization program, Wiperman recommended abolition of all commissions and establishment of "one-man control" in all state departments.

Delegates adopted resolutions pledging maximum cooperation to the national and state defense councils, and creating a committee to study taxation with the view of "simplifying government and reducing taxes." The committee members will be named later.

Unions Likened To Dynamiters

Racketeers Who Hold Up Defense Program Hit by Congressman

Washington —(P)— Representative Hoffman (R-Mich.) declared yesterday that "union racketeers" are delaying defense operations and increasing the cost of national preparedness.

"What is the difference in effect," Hoffman asked in a statement, "between the man who blows up a munitions factory and the man or the organization which bars the gates against the man who would operate the plant?"

"The dynamiter is condemned on all hands, but those who accomplish the same thing by compelling the payment of tribute before one can work on the program go unpunished, unpunished, by the administration."

The procedure of some unions, Hoffman asserted, "is adding enormously to the cost of the defense program and will result, if it continues in giving us less defense for the same amount of money than we otherwise would receive."

"What is the sense," he inquired, "of conspiring men, sending them to camps, then letting strikers deny to workers the lumber necessary to build these conscripted men, or to house the ships or the planes which we must have for defense?"

Hoffman criticized President Roosevelt for taking a Caribbean trip at this time, and said that congress "is no more effective than an old, broody hen sitting on a nest full of door knobs."

Road Committee Buys Truck and Snow Plows

The county highway committee yesterday purchased a Clintonville 4-wheel drive truck complete with a v-type Wausau plow and wings from the Clintonville Four-Wheel Drive company. The firm bid $10,512. Five bids were considered by the committee which traded in an old grader.

A 1-way plow was purchased from the Drott Tractor and Equipment company for $285.

Two tank cars of gasoline were purchased from the Standard Oil company for 6.96 cents per gallon.

Thinks It's Time for U.S. to Decide Policy

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York —(P)—Some time ago this column recorded that it was apparent we Americans shortly would be faced with the problem of deciding whether we wished to increase our war-aid to England, since the British themselves were raising the question.

I suggested that it behooved us to get busy in advance of the event and make up our minds just what we wanted to do.

This British appeal—which is developing strongly on both sides of the Atlantic—is too important for us to delay consideration until we have to give snap judgment.

And now I'm going a step further and call your attention to the growing intimations, from England and here at home, that our aid should carry us into the war.

A bit has been cut off this piece of cloth by Lady Nancy Astor, American-born member of the British parliament and wife of Lord Astor. She didn't say right in in meeting that we ought to join the conflict, but in addressing the Eagle squadron of American volunteers in the Royal Air Force in London, she exclaimed:

"I knew they would come. Thousands of young Americans are longing to get into this war. It is right that they should."

Typical Of Thought
That's rather typical of the trend of thought in many quarters in Britain, and one encounters some of it here at home. So I say it's quite likely that before long we shall have to face a further call from England that we extend our aid to the battle-line.

Again I suggest that we ought forthwith to devote to this momentous question our best thought so that we may have ready a considered answer and not a hysterical response evoked by some sensational incident. As I remarked in connection with the previous article, it is naturally isn't within my province as a military and foreign affairs analyst to offer an opinion on such an issue. They can't do more than hang a fellow, though, for advocating careful consideration.

The first point we must settle is what our purpose would be in going to war. You've got to have a mighty good reason—not just a catchy slogan. Would we be rescuing a friend? Would we be fighting for democracy? Would we be battling for self-preservation?

When our boys went over the top in the World War they were inspired with high ideals about making the world safe for democracy. Marshal Foch, allied generalissimo, had a word to say about that to American correspondents at Treves on Jan. 15, 1919, during the armistice. I have before me an Associated Press dispatch of that date.

"Your soldiers were superb," said the grand old warrior. "They came to us young, enthusiastic, and carried forward by a vigorous idealism and they marched to battle with admirable gallantry. . . . The youth of the United States brought a renewal of the hope that hastened victory."

What banner will Sir Galahad fly in this war? That's for you and for me to decide well and truly before we strike.

If and when we have determined the purpose of our sacrifice, we shall be confronted immediately by another great issue, namely, to what ends are we prepared to go to achieve our goal. Is it a fight to a finish? Nazism has declared that it is out to destroy England; British Premier Churchill not long ago cried: "We seek to beat the life and soul out of Hitler and Hitlerism—that alone."

That question arose at the end of the last war when millions of good men and brave already lay dead. It will come up again in this war. What's the answer? Let's consult the great Foch again. When asked if the armistice hadn't been concluded too soon he replied quietly:

"It was not possible to do otherwise, because the Germans gave us everything that we asked for at once. . . ."

"Doubtless, any general would have preferred to have continued the struggle and to have battle when the battle which offered itself was so promising, but a father of a family could not help but think of the blood that would be shed. . . ."

We held victory in our grasp without any further sacrifice. We took it as it came.

"And now we must make a peace which will correspond with the magnitude of our victory. We must have a peace as absolute as was our success and which will guard us against all further aggression."

"We have no idea of attacking Germany or of recommencing the war. Democracies such as ours never attack. They ask but to live in peace and to grow in peace. . . . but we can say that Germany—where democratic ideas are so recent and perhaps very superficial—will not quickly recover from its defeat."

Farsighted Foch! Germany did recover, and 21 years later we have what we have. How far must this war go, say you? Herr Hitler declared today in Berlin amidst cries of "siege hell" from his audience: "Never again a Versailles treaty!"

Indiana Students on Strike In Ouster of Schools Chief

Middletown, Ind. —(P)—High school students proclaiming loyalty to Superintendent Wilbur Shirey were cut on strike today to protest his ouster by the school board in a dispute that split this little Hoosier town into two factions.

They walked out yesterday, for the second time in less than a week, after Shirey, who is also a high school English and public speaking teacher, was served with a dismissal notice by Sheriff Cash Robinson and Board Member J. D. Greenlee.

State Policeman Russell Powner reported to headquarters in Indianapolis that about 170 of some 300 pupils left their classes. Clarence R. Young, erstwhile Frankfort High school principal who took over Shirey's place, reported, however, that classes continued uninterrupted.

Young said some of the pupils remained away from classes this morning. Classes were being held as usual, he said, and added he could give no figures on the absences.

Powner and three other officers from the Connorsville state police post had come here the night before last in expectation of the strike. Powner said there was no violence.

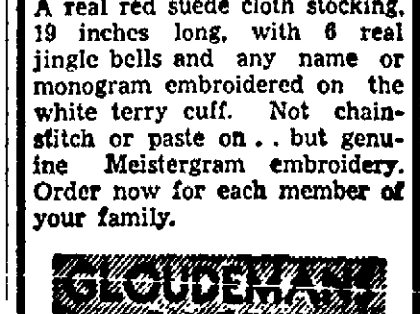

One group among Middletown's 1,400 townspeople began circulating a petition to abolish the school board and to institute a different administrative body. Another group backed the board, which charged that Shirey had exceeded his authority by hiring a grade school teacher without its consent. The teacher, Vesta Sellers, was employed to fill a vacancy.

Under fire from the board, Shirey resigned a week ago yesterday. Two

Milwaukee Has Business Boom

Estimate Turnover For 1940 to Amount To $1,400,000,000

Milwaukee — (P)— The "stupendous figure" of $1,400,000,000 is the estimate set for the 1940 business turnover in Milwaukee.

This amount is considerably above recent yearly volumes and about 86 per cent of the city's 1929 total.

Harry J. Bell, executive director of the Association of Commerce, released the figures comprising retail, manufacturing and wholesale and jobbing activities. Kenneth W. Haagen, research director of the association, compiled the figures.

Milwaukee's retail business for 1940 will come to approximately $350,000,000, only $4,000,000 below the 1929 total and $87,000,000 above 1935.

Wholesalers and jobbers are due to have about $450,000,000 worth of business as compared to $545,650,000 in 1929 and $350,760,000 in 1935.

Manufacturing is figured at $800,000,000 for 1940. This is $100,000,000 below 1929 and $110,000,000 above 1935.

In connection with the release of the figures, Bell revealed that Milwaukee employed more persons in the manufacture of automobile parts than any city in the country except Detroit. He also said that Milwaukee packed more steel than any city in the United States.

Although not one ton of steel is made here, Milwaukee consumes more steel than any other American industrial center, including Pittsburgh, Bell reported.

Bell stated that the city leads the world in the manufacture of steam shovels, silk hosiery, motorcycles, large gas engines, heavy pumping machines, automobile frames, dredges, outboard motors, electrical control apparatus and steel wheelbarrows.

Bell also claimed that Milwaukee had a greater diversification of industry than any city in the country which he said was "an important element from the standpoint of stabilization of business on a community basis."

Italian Forces in Egypt Face Danger of Isolation

By the Associated Press.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill disclosed in the house of commons today that Britain's desert fighters in Egypt have cut in behind Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian army at the main fascist base city of Sidi Barrani—the farthest point of the Italian invasion into Egypt.

British forces, he said, had reached the Mediterranean coast between Sidi Barrani and Buhaq.

Buhaq lies 35 miles west of Sidi Barrani, about midway between the city and the Libyan-Egyptian border.

In reply to a question, Churchill declined to say specifically whether the Italian army had been cut off, but the arrival of British troops at the coast indicated that the main fascist armies were in danger of being isolated.

Simultaneously, a British African command communiqué reported that the British had captured 4,000 Italian prisoners in their drive in the western Egyptian desert.

This would indicate either an offensive on a huge scale—far bigger than the British have conservatively reported—or that the fascist Egyptian armies were surrendering in wholesale numbers.

Italian Report

Italian dispatches from the Egyptian front said 10 Italian planes attacked a British mechanized column of 30 machines in a sandstorm south of Sidi Barrani, but gave no indication of more than small-scale fighting along the desert front.

Allied successes against the Rome-Berlin axis mounted also in Albania, where Greece's fierce-fighting warriors reportedly captured important new positions after inflicting heavy losses on units of the ninth Italian division in a hand-to-hand battle in the north.

In the south, the Greeks were reported to have smashed against the Italian right wing in a drive to Piqueiras, 15 miles north of Porto Edda, Italy's fallen supply base on the Adriatic sea.

Amid these developments—the biggest batch of British successes in many days—Adolf Hitler gave a "pep" talk to 12,000 Berlin munitions workers in which he swore peace and proclaimed himself the champion of the "have-not" nations against the "haves"—including the United States.

The war, he insisted, is a conflict between "those two worlds," and he shouted:

"We will defeat the entire world!"

German Spies Executed

Three hours before Hitler spoke, two German spies were executed at gloomy Pontonville prison in London—the first announced spy deaths since the war began.

The British radio, commenting on Hitler's address, declared "it was the most defensive speech of his whole career."

La Vita Italiana, Italian monthly published by Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the fascist party and member of the fascist grand council, declared meanwhile that it costs "more than doubt" to dress this year in Italy than it did last year before Italy went to war.

Rising popular discontent over Il Duce's war with Greece was broadly indicated, too, in a front-page article by the fascist newspaper Il Popolo di Roma, which urged the

Over 350 Students Take Part in Speech Institute

Clintonville—The first speech institute held in this part of the state in several years was conducted at Clintonville High school Saturday. More than 350 students, teachers, and visitors were in attendance, representing 25 communities.

The morning sessions consisted of student participation in debate and declamatory work. After the debate sessions, in which Clintonville was represented by Jeanne Krause, Joan Stein, Leroy Korb and Margaret Fritz, instruction was carried on by Mr. Meyers and Mr. Howell, who are connected with the speech department at the University of Wisconsin. The students in the audience were permitted to bring up all manner of questions for discussion and the instructors gave their viewpoints and comments accordingly. Instruction in humorous declamatory work was carried on by Miss Harriet Grim of the University of Wisconsin and non-humorous by Miss Gertrude Johnson of the same institution. Eight students took part in each declamatory group.

The afternoon sessions were devoted to extemporaneous speaking, extemporaneous reading and oratory. The first of these was in charge of Mr. Meyers, the second was conducted by Miss Grim and Miss Johnson, and the third by Mr. Howell. More than thirty students took part in these events.

The afternoon also found a debating team from the University of Wisconsin discussing the high school debate question, "Resolved: That the power of the federal government should be increased." Arlyn Marquardt, a former Clintonville High school debater, was on the university team.

The individuals interested in dramatic work also held a program during the afternoon with Mr. Cass of the University leading the comments.

The final work of the day found the winners in oratory, humorous declamatory, non-humorous declamatory, extemporaneous speaking and reading performing in the demonstration program. The winner in each group was as follows: humorous declamation, Miss Alseur of Oconto; non-humorous declamation, Shirley Seidel of Clintonville; extemporaneous speaking, Harry Thimke of Shawano; oratory, Russel Knister of Clintonville; extemporaneous reading, Delores Hastings of Hortonville and Mary Hirsch of Shawano. After each contestant appeared in the demonstration program an instructor from the university made brief comments on that field of work.

Besides the persons mentioned those appearing on the program were Harley J. Powell, superintendent of the Clintonville schools, V. A. Kimball of the state department of public instruction; T. J. McGlynn, chairman of forensic work in the Oshkosh district; Miss Almere Scott, secretary of the Wisconsin Forensic Association; and Melvin E. Bartz, director of speech at the Clintonville High school.

The circulation department of the Appleton Post-Crescent is represented in Clintonville by James Bohr, 46 Main street. Orders for subscriptions may be left with him. Subscribers missed by carrier should call Mr. Bohr, telephone 551, before 5 p. m.

Germany Can Beat World, Hitler Says

which made necessary the bending of all energies toward internal affairs in Germany.

Meanwhile he said "Britain put together a tremendous empire by force."

"The distribution was undertaken by humans themselves."

Italy like Germany was torn within herself, he said.

"Rich regions yield better returns domestically than poor ones," he said. "Similarly, international possession of rich regions is important."

"Just as within nations too great contrasts between rich and poor must be adjusted, if necessary by force, so also internationally it won't do for a few to have all the possessions while others are suppressed."

"Right" at Stake

"We tried to solve the problem by appeals to common sense. We tried to bridge the chasm between those who had too much and those with too little."

"We preferred common sense to force. The right to live belongs to all nations. It won't do for one people to say 'we'll let you others take part in our life.' It isn't a question of charity. It is a question of obtaining one's rights."

"The right to live includes the right to soil."

"Bloody sacrifices are better than gradually dying off of nations."

"When we took over we demanded first national unity as this was necessary for giving us the necessary strength to satisfy our claims."

Hitler then traced domestic achievements of the Nazi regime. He said he tried to bring about national unity by an appeal to reason. But during the 15 years he was scoffed at as he worked his way to the top, he said.

During seven years after coming to power, old conceptions were overthrown, state lines were removed and Germany, he maintained, was swept clean.

Assails Treaty

"My second demand," he said, "was the removal of foreign political oppression as exemplified in the Versailles treaty whereby, among other things, our colonies and possessions were taken from us."

"In other words, my second demand was to fight against Versailles. I said this even when I was still a soldier."

"The rest of the world didn't want our national unity, and it was determined to continue the Versailles system."

"American and English observers patently spoke of the haves and have nots. We English, we Americans, we French are haves, and whoever hasn't must remain satisfied with not having. To some, I was the representative of the have nots."

"Now again, I enter the fight as the representative of the have nots."

Hitler was interrupted here by a long burst of applause.

"It is interesting to observe," Hitler continued, "the mode of living of the rich. They had so-called democracy."

"It is said this means rule by the people. But when you look closer the people as such have not an opinion—it is placed before them. Now, who places this viewpoint before them? Why, it is capitalism!"

Assails at Capitalism

"The slogan of liberty really means freedom of economy, namely for everybody to grab for himself without state control. Capitalism makes the newspaper subservient. The lord of the so-called free press is the man who supplies the capital, this press moulds public opinion. The papers appear according to political parties, but in reality there is no difference between them."

"There's no real opposition—the opposition really holds the same view."

"Now one might suppose that in lands of freedom and democracy everybody lived in plenty. The contrary is true. Nowhere is the standard of the masses lower."

Hitler spoke of India especially where, he said, the direct poverty reigns. There and elsewhere, the workers live in the worst hovels imaginable, he said, and the unemployment problem remains completely unsolved.

"Rich America has 12 to 13 million unemployed annually," he declared. He also gave figures for England and France.

Only a few hundred capitalists rule the world, Hitler declared.

He poked fun at the English opposition leader, whom he quoted as saying that, after the war, travel also must become available to the masses.

Fear "New Ideas"

"It's natural for the English leaders to say they don't want their world to go under," Hitler declared, "because they fear Germany's new ideas may spring over to England."

"They say: 'We don't like these methods.' What were those methods? I am proud that the revolution occurred in 1933 without a single window being smashed."

"They claim in England," he went on, "that we have terrorized liberty. Yes, that's true, namely when freedom was at the expense of the common weal. Certainly, we won't permit anybody freely to dispose of his earnings if, thereby, the common weal is interfered with."

Hitler poked fun at directors of big concerns who eat well, travel comfortably and draw large pay for this "difficult" activity.

The workers greeted this sally with applause.

Germany, Hitler said, has done away with all these things. At the same time, he said, Nazism does not believe in every individual being equal.

"Worlds in Conflict"

"Two worlds are in conflict," he went on, "two philosophies of life. They say we should keep up the gold standard—of course, for they have the gold and we haven't it. In the course of 15 years all our gold has been taken away from us."

Now, Hitler said, Germany has "a different economic conception."

"We place our confidence," he declared, "in the ability of the German people and the intelligence of our technicians, chemists, inventors, organizers of inventors, etc."

"Should we go to pieces, I asked myself, because we have no gold?"

"Our capacity for work is our gold, our capital, and with it we will defeat the entire world."

The fuhrer was once more interrupted by applause.

"I built up my entire economy on the conception of work," Hitler went on. "Those who had gold have failed completely. You can't get anybody to take British pounds even if you throw them after them. Our German mark without gold is worth more than gold."

"If I had said publicly eight or nine years ago that our problem would be where to get enough labor, people would have said I was crazy. But today we have one problem—where do we get workers? Work creates work."

Rationing System

Hitler then went into Germany's rationing system. He acknowledged that it had created some hardships, but he said that, because it was applied from the very beginning of the war, Germany is better off than the other warring countries.

He also said men from the humblest ranks now hold the highest positions in the country.

"We have generals today," he said, "who 22 or 23 years ago were privates or non-commissioned officers."

The Hitler system of youth education affords even the poorest a chance to rise, the fuhrer declared.

"Our ideal is that every position in the country shall be filled by a true son of the people," Hitler said.

"We want a state in which birth matters nothing and achievement means everything. For this we are working with tremendous fanaticism. Contracted with this is the idea of our enemies—a fight for egoism, for capital, for individual and family privileges."

"Gold Versus Labor"

"Our enemies know that if they succumb then they have bought all their gold in vain, then family dynasties will be removed, and there will be a collapse."

Hitler said "One of these two worlds must break asunder."

"The traffic signals," he said, "are now placed as follows: 'Gold versus labor.'"

Hitler said he had big plans for his people.

"I want to make our country beautiful," he declared. "I want the theaters to be for everybody. For all this I wanted our manpower available—not for armaments."

He traced what he described as his various offers to disarm, to ban air fights.

"But I am not a man who does things half way," he went on. "When once I have decided on my course I am filled with boundless fanaticism. When I realized that others didn't want to accept my proposals, I decided to act."

He described himself as "a little simple unknown soldier" and contrasted himself with Winston Churchill, the late Neville Chamberlain and other British leaders.

He rested his faith, he said, in Germany's common man.

"Germany cannot go under so long as she has such men as these simple souls who fought side by side with me. They say I have an inferiority complex toward the English. They're crazy. I never had that."

"I made offer after offer to the English, but there wasn't anything to be done—they wanted war. For seven years, Churchill said 'I want war.' Now he has it."

Once again Hitler was interrupted by applause.

Groups Agree On Inquiries

but I am confident that you and I can settle such conflicts informally between us as they arise."

Negotiations between the committee and the justice department were begun at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, who telegraphed to Chairman Dies (D-Texas) a caution against "premature disclosure of facts or of suppositions to the public."

The attorney general and Voorhis had an initial conference last week at which the basis for the agreement today was reached. In his letter to Voorhis today, Jackson did not mention Dies by name and at one point in it said that information had been given the department by "yourself, by Congressman Starnes (D-Ala.), Congressman Dempsey (D-N.M.) and perhaps by others. Any limitations that we have asked on publicity have in each instance been faithfully observed." He added:

"I suggest, therefore, that matters of this kind be handled informally between yourself or other appropriate members of the committee and this department. Whenever you feel that a conference between us will be helpful to the general understanding, I shall be glad to arrange it."

Urges Secrecy

The attorney general told Voorhis that it would be "helpful to bear in mind" that convictions could not be obtained because of activities "however objectionable and injurious to the public interest" unless they violated a specific federal statute and could be properly supported by evidence.

Jackson said that the department would gladly furnish the committee information which was not involved in probable prosecutive action. In cases which the committee decides may lead to prosecution, Jackson asked him not to disclose that fact "or even to disclose that you are referring it to us," he continued.

"This mere announcement is a tip-off that often leads to destruction of evidence or the 'fixing' or removal, or silencing of witnesses."

Voorhis said in his letter that the department and the committee were "by their very nature complementary agencies and cannot properly be regarded in any sense competitive or antagonistic to one another."

Each, Voorhis said, has a distinct field—the justice department to detect and punish crime and the committee to make recommendations to congress and to warn the American people of disloyal activities and propaganda.

First Lady Raps 'Racket' Setup Of Some Unions

and I don't believe that, unless it's a local and it was a racket, a man should be kept out because of his initiation fee."

"I think a good union would make the adjustment; I think a good many do," Mrs. Roosevelt declared.

In her testimony on migration, much of which she drew from her own extensive first-hand knowledge gained in traveling, Mrs. Roosevelt expressed the opinion it was "deplorable" that, in some cases, the children of migrant families "haven't any idea what it means to be citizens of a democracy."

Must Solve Problem

"Everyone ought to know what he wants to defend," the first lady declared, in discussing a lack of educational opportunities among migrants.

"The young people—I think they are going to be a heavy burden in tuberculosis hospitals and prisons unless we devise some means of seeing that education moves with them," she continued.

"If something is not done, I think we are in for a very dangerous situation."

The first lady took the committee craft for the protection of convoys in waters around Britain and said the house would debate shipping problems shortly in a secret session.

"I have come to the conclusion," he told the house of commons, "that while there is no need at present to change the position of the coastal command as a part of the R. A. F., it is necessary that the coastal command should play a more important part than it has hitherto done in trade protection, and that for this purpose substantial increases, some of which have been already effected, will be necessary."

Then he added that since the function of the coastal command is to cooperate with the navy, "the operational policy of the command must be determined by the admiralty, in consultation with the air officer commander in chief."

Churchill's announcement coincided with a British Africa command with her on a tour of words from California to Florida. She described one settlement in the Florida Everglades as resembling "a rabbit hutch" and "a fire trap." The standard of living among many workers "is a serious thing," she said.

After her extemporaneous statement, she was asked by Representative Parsons (D-Ill.) whether she considered the plight of migrants a national problem—one for congress to consider.

Replying affirmatively, the first lady said a conference should be called of all agencies that have dealt with the migrants so that they might, with their experiences, furnish ideas for a program. A study should be made as to how medical care can be given migratory groups, she said, and consideration should be directed to the educational factor.

Communicating Placing the Number of Italians Captured Since Saturday at 4,000 (Roughly 5 per cent of the estimated 80,000 Italians within Egypt)

Military observers declared the big surprise raid which started yesterday seemed to be developing toward a full-fledged offensive.

Rome—(AP)—Italian dispatches from the Egyptian front reported today 10 Italian planes attacked a British mechanized column of 30 machines in a sandstorm south of Sidi Barrani, but indicated there had been only small-scale fighting along the desert front.

The Italian dispatches said the British column was machine-gunned east of Bir Emba by scouting planes.

The electorate will vote for nine aldermen, nine supervisors and two members of the board of education, John F. Behnke and Homer H. Benton, whose terms end in 1941.

Dr. Dedrick Studies New Appointment Of Seats in Congress

Washington—(AP)—As congressional eyes turn toward methods of apportioning house seats on the basis of the 1940 census figures, the task of a former University of Wisconsin instructor becomes increasingly important in the bureau of the census.

He is Dr. Calvert L. Dedrick, chief statistician in the division of statistical research, who believes his job is the "most interesting in government."

He heads a staff of experts which has prepared factual data and interpretative material on population figures and their application on reapportionment of house seats under various methods.

"My staff is composed of scientific men and we must deal with men presenting practical problems," Dedrick explained. "We must interpret practical problems into scientific procedures, and I get a big kick out of it."

Dedrick made it clear his division is not interested in the "political implications" of reapportionment, but rather in making the various methods plain to everyone.

He came to Washington as a staff member of the central statistical board in 1933 and since 1935 has been with the census bureau.

A native of California, he spent eight of his first seventeen years in

Donors Urged to Send Money for Christmas Seals

Christmas seal sale chairmen, Mrs. E. W. Nelson and Lou M. Rosholt, today urged Appleton people who have received their quotas of the West Indies, where his father was a Baptist missionary.

"I learned to speak Spanish before I could talk English and when we returned to the United States relatives kidded me because I spoke English with a Spanish accent," the statistician said. He is 40, now.

His mother, Mrs. Emma E. Dedrick, lives in Madison, Wis., where the statistician said. He is 40, now.

Dedrick settled in 1918. He attended Central High school and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1924. Later he was an instructor and research associate in the department of sociology and economics there.

seals through the mails to return the money as soon as possible.

The money for the seals may be mailed to Al G. Stoegebauer, treasurer, at Box 604, Appleton. If the donor cannot afford to buy both sheets of seals contained in the envelope, he may buy one and return the other, the chairmen said.

"The important thing to decide is how many seals can you afford to buy and then buy them at once," the chairmen said. "We must remember that in buying Christmas seals we are buying something besides a colorful stamp for our Christmas mail."

"We are buying protection against tuberculosis for ourselves, our families and the whole community. This is a value which we cannot see as a tangible package, but we can see it in the decline in the tuberculosis death rate in the state," they stated.

The Governor Approves a University Building Program

There are certain aspects of the University of Wisconsin's $1,650,000 building program, apparently approved by the benign Mr. Heil, which cannot pass without comment.

It has already been said in these columns that the university, along with all other public institutions in Wisconsin, ought to proceed discreetly in asking for greater appropriations of tax funds during a period of national emergency, when the whole nation is asked to pay for an arms program unprecedented during peace-time in America.

Without imputing a will to deceive to the university administration, it can be argued that the state school did not tell the governor the whole story when at the budget hearing its representatives justified the huge building expenditure on the ground that the state had spent only about $100,000 for physical improvements during the last ten year period.

The fact is that the university's physical plant has been expanded during the decade just ended at a rate which compares favorably with any equal period in its history. It matters little, from the standpoint of the adequacy of its facilities, that the new buildings were provided through state or federal funds. It was public money; the federal public works expenditures at the university will be paid for by the people of Wisconsin.

During recent years the university has erected several large and modern dormitories. It has built a million dollar university theatre. It has been provided with a new law school building. It has vastly improved its medical school building with an annex. Thus it can hardly be said that the university has been on a starvation diet in building. Nor is there any blame due the state government for keeping the purse strings tied, when Washington stood ready to underwrite big improvements and expansions in plant.

Another excellent reason to examine closely and rigorously the university's request was given a few days ago by Frank Klode, director of the state department of public welfare. Klode is not a radical. The radicals in fact, would have him pictured as a reactionary. It was Klode's considered, conservative opinion that the state of Wisconsin will be obliged to spend more than $29,000,000 during the next two years for welfare purposes—roughly 40 cents out of every dollar spent by the state during the biennium.

Then there is the question of measuring the merit of the university building program as against the numerous other building requests submitted to the governor lately.

Anybody who has visited the state prison knows that it is sorely overtaxed, primitive in some of its equipment. State welfare administrators have pleaded for years for funds to improve such facilities as the state homes for the feeble-minded. State teachers' college administrators, men as honest and as conscious of the state's welfare as the university administrators, have literally begged for building funds over a period of many years. And the adjutant general has just described, succinctly, but seriously, some of the buildings at the Waupaca veterans' home as "dangerous fire-traps."

It will seem to many interested citizens that there is a suspicion of partiality when a state administration pledges unconditional approval of an ambitious building and expansion program at the state university, while postponing or evading needs in other directions which appear equally worthy by the record.

It impresses us that way.

German Attacks On English Convoys

Germany has delivered some stunning and staggering blows to English commerce and confidence.

It may generally be said that unless England can stop the sinking of its ships, its cause is sunk.

The Germans are smarter than a hungry fox. By striking hundreds of miles west of Ireland, they are attempting to compel England to detail part of its navy to patrol and convoy. This, of course, would make attack upon England all the easier.

England may find it necessary to load these convoys on their westward trip with those parts of its population that are not needed in its defense. If several million people may be shipped to Canada, England will need several million tons less of shipping to transport the food required by these people.

We assume that England is working desperately to plug up every weakness, and to forearm against every possible point of attack. For in the spring, or whenever the weather is inviting, all the furies painted by Dante as flocking in Hell are going to break loose.

Population and Representation

According to the official census returns, the country is due for changes in the number of representatives sent by certain states to the House.

Kansas, Oklahoma, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts each lose a Congressman. California should gain two. Florida, Arizona, New Mexico, Tennessee and North Carolina are also gainers. Wisconsin will sit as is. Some other states are very close upon the rim of losing or gaining.

Congress determines the number of representatives. But it is ordered by the Constitution to apportion that membership among the states according to population. It then becomes the privilege of each state to divide itself into districts, or to elect a whole.

The disposition of men in political life to enlarge the number of offices, but never to shrink them, was the cause of a growing House until 1920, when it was found that the child had become so large it had lost considerable by way of fleetness and efficiency. There was a time, about a hundred years ago, when the House was looked upon in many respects as a more important legislative body than the Senate. We had a retired president who sought to continue his public career in the House and served there. But as each census indicated the necessity of corrections in the representation of different states, and as no one had the hardihood to suggest that some state lose a representative, the House kept growing until the country began to wonder upon what meat it fed.

In 1920 the House just stood still like a Missouri mule tired of work. It didn't even look at the census returns. It snapped its fingers at the Constitution. And who was there could say it nay? But its better conscience, aided perhaps by the dinning noise from the press, aroused it and the country to a solution by the time the 1930 census came along. And that solution is a clear mirror of one of the great difficulties in legislation and government.

For the House simply could not bear to view its own work of destruction in transferring representatives from some states to others. It didn't have the heart. But Congress had some adroit members who knew how to draw a subtle and automatic law so that the membership of the House would be changed according to the official census even before the sad eyes of the congressmen could look upon the figures.

That law still exists. And, considering the weaknesses and pitfalls of humanity in general, and the House in particular, it is a splendid law, and will work the necessary changes with a minimum of tears and crepe.

For if more people are moving to the southland, as the returns show, the southland simply must have more to say in making our laws and shaping our destiny.

Worker's Eyes

The French government has suppressed labor unions. It has taken its position alongside Moscow, Berlin and Rome.

Whenever democracy is ushered out the door, freedom for the worker departs alongside. Thereafter the person is but a chip upon a turbulent stream, the serf of the state.

We do not expect the Vichy government to be as harsh as Moscow. But it may learn. In Russia, labor unions have been abolished too. A worker there is thrown in jail, if he is so sensitive as to imagine he has a grievance. And he is fired from his job, if he happens to be twenty minutes late for work, which said firing also means that he loses the roof that shields his family from the harsh Russian weather. It didn't take Mussolini or Hitler long in office to abolish labor organizations nor to promulgate certain rules for workers that should be interesting enough to frame for the walls of American workers.

A worker must report for such job as is tendered him by the state. If he sees a chance of getting a better job elsewhere, he may not accept it unless the state nods its solemn head. And the state is seldom in a nodding mood. Workers in all these non-democratic countries are like the men on a checkerboard, moved by whims and sudden caprices, and finding their only safety in being perfectly wooden.

Wherever the state moves in, wherever absolutism takes control, however alluring the label or sugary the promise, the worker suffers most immediately and most continuously.

And yet he is not always alert to trends that move him toward dangerous shadows.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—During the week before his Caribbean cruise, the president held a series of private conferences which were of prime importance in connection with his plans for the new congress. In them he disclosed that he is doing a lot of thinking about domestic problems along two lines—

1. Youth.
2. Old-age pensions.

Roosevelt told his callers that he considered these the most pressing problems facing the country and that he was determined to do something "fundamental" about both.

It was essential to deal with the youth problem, Roosevelt held, if the nation's democratic system is to be preserved. If youth is allowed to lose hope in the future, to be cut off from a sense of "belonging," it is certain to become an easy prey to destructive isms.

Democracy can resist these subversive ideologies, the president held, only by convincing youth that it does have a stake and a future in the existing system. The history of Germany and other countries which have fallen under the heel of totalitarianism proves this, and the United States has no time to lose in coping with the problem.

The president indicated that he had no particular program in mind. In fact, he asked for suggestions and ideas. But he emphasized that he was thinking in terms both of training and of jobs, and that the plan he would send to congress would be based on these two objectives.

He also indicated that he expected the program would run into big money in order to be really effective, but that he considered such an expenditure infinitely more productive than spending money for relief.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS

On old-age pensions, Roosevelt disclosed that he has made up his mind as to what he wants. His idea is to change the existing system of widely divergent state contributions to one of uniform federal pensions, beginning at a lower age than the present 65.

The president mentioned no pension figure, but made it clear that he was ready to go as far as congress was willing and expressed the hope that it would not be "niggardly." He declared that a federal old-age pension system was the soundest investment the country could make to ensure domestic stability.

Roosevelt also voiced sharp criticism of the moguls of the social security board who have so vigorously opposed liberalization of the law. He declared that they have been a big obstruction to reform and that the time had come to overrule them. It was significant that the president had not discussed his plans with them and was proceeding independently.

Note—Since January 1, when the amended law became operative, 190,000 applications for old-age pensions have been approved by the social security board for a total outlay of $4,108,000 a month. With the $7,048,000 paid out in lump sum claims to survivors, the total old-age pension outlay so far is around $28,000,000. The average pension is $22 a month. In his conferences, Roosevelt talked of placing 5,000,000 oldsters on federal pensions within a year.

CORDELL HULL'S CROQUET

Cordell Hull has become a master of recreation. He has found that the perfect formula for getting his mind off Martineau or the Burma Road is to play croquet every fair afternoon, stopping only when the sun goes down and one wicket cannot be seen from another.

His regular croquet mates are Norman Davis, head of the Red Cross; Harry McBride, his former secretary; George Renchard, his present secretary; James Dunn and Stanley Hornbeck, state department advisers. Occasionally, this stag party is joined by Mrs. Hull. Scenes of operations is the Woodley estate, property of Secretary of War Stimson.

They always play as a foursome, two on a side, and Hull, though the oldest of the group, is the best player of them all. Three times he has accomplished the amazing feat of driving all the way around the court and back again in a single turn. And when Mrs. Hull joins the game, there is no need to favor her out of courtesy. She is second only to the secretary in croquet skill.

BRITISH DAMAGE

Confidential military estimates of nazi bombing damage to Great Britain are that British industrial production has fallen off about 30 per cent.

While this is a very serious crimp in the output of British planes, anti-aircraft guns and shells, it is not as bad as the pictures of shattered Bristol, Coventry, and Southampton would indicate.

Reason damage to British industrial production has not been greater is (1st) that the British more than a year ago began scattering their plants in small units throughout Scotland and northern England, which are hard to locate and hard to hit after they are located; (2) that those big plants which do remain are protected with a virtual forest of anti-aircraft guns.

Thus, although terrific damage was done to Coventry, most of it was in the residential and business part of the city, not so much in the industrial areas. Apparently the Germans are aware of this, but have decided to continue raining death and destruction on residential and business areas in an effort to shake British morale. So far it has not been shaken.

Far more serious is the damage to British navy yards. These cannot be broken up into small units, and they have been so heavily damaged that the repair of British shipping is very materially retarded. In many cases, British warships have been repaired at sea.

Thus, plus the tremendous increase in the sinking of merchant vessels, is what makes the British shipping plight so desperate at present. (Copyright, 1940)

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

JOY IS COMING

When Winter lays the cosmos bare
And strips the trumpet vine,
I hear the storm ride through the air,
But my heart does not pine.
Instead of thinking of the bold
Fingers of winter drumming,
I know, when snowdrops I behold,
That Spring is coming!

So shall I try to reason when
My heart is cold with fear,
I shall be quick to welcome then
The summer of the year.
For even when the harp of grief
With woe's chords is humming,
I must be strong in my belief
That Joy is coming!

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT
Washington—The United States Capitol is getting its face lifted—and what a mess!

For the first time in 140 years, the House of Representatives is meeting outside its own hall—in the big, bright ways and means committee room in the new House Office building.

The Senate has turned back the calendar nearly 82 years and is holding sessions in the old Senate chamber just off the well of the "little rotunda." Into this Mark Twain once stared and probably thinking of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, called it "the spittoon of America."

The reason for the face-lifting is that the roots of the Senate and House wings are sagging. David Lynn, Capitol architect, has been warning for years that a heavy snow might bring tons of glass and rubble down on the heads of Congress.

Plans were to do a permanent job of fitting new beams into the roofs during adjournment this summer and fall but national defense and a popular demand for Congress to stay in session put a stop to that.

The congressmen have hundreds of letters which say: "Even if the Capitol comes down on your heads, stay on the job." A demand that "strong couldn't be ignored, but it has contributed to the mess, for so reluctant was Congress to suspend operations that it now is possible even the temporary job cannot be completed by January 3 and the 77th Congress will have to convene in the present make-shift quarters.

Would Be Packed

For the members of the House, this would be considerable inconvenience for as large as the committee room is, it would hardly be more than a sardine can, packed with 435 members, employees and relatives and friends who would want to be on hand for the ceremony.

The Senate, on the other hand, probably wouldn't mind so much, for despite the inconvenience, a lot of the gentlemen are getting a big kick out of running back through history to their pre-Civil War quarters.

The old Senate chamber has been dignified by 70 years of occupancy by the Supreme Court (which only vacated in 1935) and by being a hall of mercy in those Civil War years when the Capitol was converted into a hospital (another portion of the Capitol was a bakery for army bread, but not the Senate chamber). Although it is about 40 feet shorter and narrower than their present chamber, it still is a serviceable room and unlike the old hall of representatives, not afflicted with acoustical whippers and echoes.

The Past Unfolds

The tradition apparently is inspiring, for you have only to hang around the corridors these days to have some senator buttonhole you with stories of the last Senate to occupy the room. There they'll tell you, sat Sam Houston, the fiery "Raven" of Texas history and the hero of San Jacinto. There sat Jefferson Davis, the gentleman from Hurricane, Miss., who was to become the Confederacy's only president. And in the chair of the president of the Senate, was Vice President John C. Brickeridge, the Kentuckian, who was to be expelled by the Senate and to become Davis' secretary of war. There also were little Stephen A. Douglas; and New York's political giant, William H. Seward.

There, someone is sure to tell you, stood Matthias Ward, the Texas Democrat appointed to the Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of J. Pinckney Henderson. On that spot, he stood and became the last man to take the oath of office in the old chamber.

On that same spot, 82 years later almost to the day, stands Berkeley Bunker, Nevada Democrat, to take the oath of office to fill the Senate chair of the late Kay Pittman.

Yes sir, the Capitol face-lifting may be a bit inconvenient, but it's stirring up tradition and the senators, at least, love it.

Biggest Load in Years

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It has become clear to anyone conversant with state financial affairs that the governor's budget bill as submitted to the state legislature in February will be higher than Heil's 1938 version, perhaps as much as $10,000,000 higher—on the basis of the statements made during his budget hearings—and $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 higher than actual state expenditures during the present biennium.

That is a highly significant probability, but for a realistic appreciation of state financial and tax prospects it must be borne in mind that the legislature will go over the governor's head for spending, and that practically every legislature within the memory of the oldest officials in the capitol has been more generous than the governor in making up state budgets.

NEW IDEAS COMING

The governor's budget is drafted within the framework of the existing state government program, governor Heil will not suggest any new services or functions for the state government. But the legislature will, and may insist upon putting the ideas into law.

There will be, for example, a strong backing for a state police and radio net work with a state detective force. And it will cost money.

There will be demands for new state subsidies for local government. Counties will ask for state help in paying for their local traffic control forces. The state department of public welfare will recommend state aid in supporting county juvenile probation services. There will be bills for greater school aids, the perennial demand for state subsidy of rural library facilities, and many others. The important fact is that total legislative appropriations will almost certainly exceed the governor's recommendations, large as the latter will inevitably be.

HEIL TEMPER

One of the few occasions during the last two hectic budgeting weeks that Governor Heil visibly lost his temper was when Chairman Voyta Wrabetz of the state industrial commission touched upon what was, by comparison, a trivial item of a $30,000 increase for the state employment budget.

Wrabetz read, without comment, a letter from the federal social security board demanding that the financial support by Wisconsin public units of the employment offices be revised. The federal agency underwrites a part of the cost of the program under the present plan, the state pays about $40,000 and local units of government contribute about $31,000. The federal officials wanted the state to take over the share of the localities.

Heil refused bluntly to approve the suggestion, which may surprise the federal authorities, who through the power of the purse, have grown accustomed to having their ideas promptly approved in Wisconsin.

Personal Health Talks

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

A medical colleague recently asked whether I knew anything about low blood pressure. He said the medical books and journals give more or less information or at least speculation on the significance, causes and management of high blood pressure but darned if he could learn anything about low blood pressure.

So I pressed the doctor's letter down on a growing pile of suggestions for articles in this column, and presently it was submerged under a lot of other suggestions that came up later. Today I dug it out: I thought low blood pressure would be easy to talk about. I ought to know what to say about it, for I've been suffering with it for as long as sphygmomanometers have been in general use in the profession—or so I infer from the expression and the casual comments of the medical examiners who have measured it. I am a strong silent man, or a silent one anyway, and I bear my cross without complaint. In fact I don't care what my blood pressure measures, as long as I keep in fine fettle.

In the New England Journal of Medicine recently Dr. S. C. Robinson of Chicago discoursed interestingly and instructively on Hypotension (medicalese for low blood pressure), which he seems inclined to consider the ideal normal blood pressure. Hypotension is not a disease, he declares; it is an ideal blood pressure level.

Dr. Robinson lifts a great load off from my mind. While I have never cared what my blood pressure happens to be, still I have always harbored a different feeling that it signified somehow that I am not only silent but a bit queer. So, naturally, it cheers me to find a colleague of Dr. Robinson's calibre regarding low blood pressure as the ideal. Now if some good doctor would advance the thesis that one-earedness is the ideal I'd feel quite happy.

Generally it has been assumed, assumed, I say, and I hope every medical reader places emphasis on that, that one with low blood pressure lacks stamina, tires easily, has cold feet and is not capable of doing prolonged mental or physical work. Leaving out of consideration such conditions as Addison's disease, coronary thrombosis, the lymphatic state, shock and some infectious disease which may be accompanied by low blood pressure, it must be obvious that the finding of low blood pressure, without associated evidences of disease, scarcely warrants the assumption described.

The systolic pressure, in an urban group of 10,883 persons was found below what is usually considered the low limit of normal blood pressure in 25 per cent, and the diastolic pressure was below the arbitrary low limit of normal in 34 per cent. Never mind just what these limits are—it is not a matter the layman should concern himself about.

The point to remember is that low blood pressure is not a bad thing to have.

Answer—Judging from a bout I had with subacromial bursitis, I'd want at least half a dozen daily applications of diathermy (for 20 to 30 minutes at a time) and moderate passive movements of the shoulder immediately after the diathermy. Such treatment brings great relief and cure in many cases. If that failed, I'd consider radical surgery.

Just a Step Behind the News

The Miami area seems to be making the most of what might be called the toothache of the century.

Wally arrives there for some dental work and the fanfare is terrific. It looks as if it would be just about the biggest boom Miami and the beach have had in years. Legs are a drug on the market there just now so far as publicity is concerned.

Dozens of motorcycle policemen, 50 policemen, all the city dignitaries and everybody in the area, resident and non-resident, turned out for the gala welcome.

"This is not going to hurt you," the dental man told Wally, of course, but she must have had her misgivings when she saw how many cops have been ordered out to protect her from harm.

Imagine going to a dental office with the whole police force for an escort. Boy, how that must help!

If the treatment is a success in Miami beach the dental surgeon won't get any credit. Miami beach will attribute it to the gulf stream, the tropical sun, the vegetation and the chamber of commerce.

Knowing the gambling spirit of that area I'm wondering if the bookies are taking any bets on it.

Expense Limit For Campaign Aids 'in' Party

Relief, WPA, Old Age Outlays Benefitted New Deal—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Limitation of campaign expenditures this year worked to the advantage of the party in power judging by the latest available analyses of what happened in the last election.

For while the Republicans spent more than did the Democrats out of funds collected directly from the citizens through national and state committees, the Roosevelt administration benefited as a consequence of federal government expenditures for relief, WPA and old-age assistance.

Although white collar workers, labor, both skilled and unskilled, farmers, and business and professional people divided in their political allegiance anywhere from 34 per cent to 69 per cent in favor of Mr. Roosevelt's reelection, the millions of voters covered in the category of "relief, WPA and old-age assistance" gave 80 per cent of their support to the administration from which they received benefits.

These figures established by the scientific surveys of the American Institute of Public Opinion constitute the most sensational piece of evidence as to how ineffective a campaign fund of $3,000,000 or, if state committees and independent bodies are included, even a campaign fund of $25,000,000 can be alongside of government appropriations amounting to billions of dollars over a period of four or eight years.

Low Income Groups
The variation from 1936 in this category of voters is not very big. It was 84 per cent in 1936. The election was won or lost, as the case may be, in the low-income groups, including the persons on relief or receiving financial aid from the government. It costs considerable money to reach such voters with literature and with campaign speeches either by radio or through the printed word, for many of them are not newspaper readers.

It becomes a serious question whether limitation of campaign expenditures isn't ultimately going to result in a bigger and bigger advantage for the party in power. This can be offset only by a repeal of all laws limiting campaign expenditures except the provisions which limit the amounts given by individuals.

The $5,000 limitation on individuals meets with general approbation, but the restriction which says that 20,000,000 persons shall not be able to contribute one dollar each if such a fund is deemed desirable by them to express their viewpoint is a serious interference with the right of petition guaranteed under the constitution itself.

The theory of the present constitution is that citizens may petition to redress their grievances and, if they cannot secure redress by communicating with the government which is in the hands of an opposition party, they naturally have the right to appeal to the electorate.

One-Sided Election
Legislation which forbids the improper use of money is one thing, but legislation which restricts the amount that can be used by the party out of power makes for a one-sided election and may conceivably mean that the party in power can never be dislodged as long as the public treasury holds out. To put it another way, a change in administration would seem possible only after the treasury has collapsed and an economic catastrophe has come. Citizens who want to spend a dollar each to educate their fellow citizens about a coming catastrophe are at present forbidden by law from collecting such a campaign fund. Even in years when there is no election going on, the total that may be spent by the party out of power is limited to $3,000,000.

The cost of campaigning naturally increases as 50,000,000 persons participate in an election campaign —a substantial increase in numbers over preceding elections. Any sums spent for radio, printed matter, and legitimate expenses of campaigning would seem to be permissible irrespective of the total amount expended. The laws of libel and the laws forbidding the circulation of slanderous matter can restrain wrongful use of campaign literature. There would seem to be no logical argument against the quantity of campaigning done, provided no one individual is permitted to contribute more than $5,000. This correspondent believes that individuals should not be permitted to give more than $500, but that the amounts to be collected from the public should not be limited at all.

The problem posed by the latest Gallup survey goes to the root of the whole system of fairness in American elections. Why should the millions of persons in the group classified as "relief, WPA and old-age assistance" vote 80 per cent for the present administration when no other single group of citizens—not even all labor, which voted 66 per cent—came anywhere near that figure? What except the benefits received and the fear that a change in administration might not give them such benefits can account for the result? Should not the party out of power be permitted to collect enough funds to carry its message to such a group? Unquestionably it would cost $5,000,000 alone to reach such voters and to tell them the truth, namely, that old-age assistance is a settled government policy and that irrespective of the political complexion of the administration in power, the only thing that will end relief payments is the creation of jobs in private industry. Inquiries are being made by government agencies in the manner in which both parties spent their money in the last campaign, with a view to recommending amendments to existing law. Unless the American people perceive in further restrictions on campaign spending the virtual curtailment of their right to get their messages to voters in all classes—an admittedly expensive process—the chances of the party out of power ever winning a national election in America again would seem to be remote.

Committee Meeting

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Monday appointed a committee to check into salaries paid to municipal employees and advise on proposed adjustments. The council last Wednesday voted to create the salary committee.

Others on the committee are Alderman J. J. Franzke, chairman of the street and bridge committee; Alderman Charles D. Thompson, chairman of the finance committee; Alderman Keller, chairman of the relief committee; and Alderman Weinkauf, chairman of the police and fire committee; Mayor Good-

HOLIDAY COOKIES

Here comes Christmas sneaking up on us and with the question what shall I give? For the woman who makes lovely cakes and cookies the question is easily answered, as no more acceptable gifts could be given to friends or relatives. In fact such gifts are especially suitable since they carry with them truly individual thoughts from the giver.

Boxes of assorted cookies and cake, either fruit or other kinds, are all suitable presents. Possibly you have pounds of fruit cake or plum pudding in store now ready to give as presents.

Following are some particularly good cookie recipes that may help you through the Christmas season and after.

Christmas Fruit Bars

- 1 cup sliced dates
- 1 cup chopped nut meats
- 2-3 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup strained honey

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Beat the eggs, add honey, stir in the dry ingredients, add dates and nuts. Spread the mixture evenly over the surface of a square pan which has been greased and dusted with flour. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. about 30 minutes. When cool, cut into bars. Store in a tin can or tightly covered jar. They keep well and can be made before the rushing days immediately preceding Christmas.

Jewelled Cookies

- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- A few coarsely cut gum drops for decoration
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup broken nut meats (blanched almonds, toasted)
- 1 cup coarsely cut gum drops (about the size of large peas)

Beat eggs very light. Add sugar gradually and stir until eggs and sugar are well blended and mixture is smooth. Sift flour and salt together and add gradually to egg and sugar mixture. Beat until smooth. Add vanilla. Stir in the nut meats and gum drops. Spread the mixture to about 1 inch thickness in a well greased and floured pan. Sprinkle coarsely cut gum drops over the top of the batter. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. Cut into bars while still warm, and remove from pan when cool.

Pecan Crispies

- 1 cup shortening
- 1 cup butter
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 beaten eggs
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 cup chopped pecan meats

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar, add eggs, beat well. Add flour, sifted with salt and soda. Add nut meats. Drop from teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet. Space about 2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees F. 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 6 dozen cookies.

Show Value Of Hand by Redoubling

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Referring to the recent examination, the lowest percentage of correct answers came in question 37, which was:

North-South vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

North East South West
1 spade 2 hearts 3 spades 4 hearts
5 hearts Double ?

You are South and hold:

♠ J8752 ♥ A6 ♦ J743 ♣ Q9

What call do you make?

The official answer was that South should redouble, and by way of explanation I said: "This is your best means of showing partner duplication of values, that is, your heart ace to his announced void." In fairness to the readers who took this examination, I must say that this was the only question of the entire forty that created any controversy among the experts I consulted. Seven of the 10 agreed heartily with my point of view, but some of these only after my reasons had been expounded.

To be perfectly frank, three nationally known experts had never heard of this particular bid under such circumstances; that is, they scoffed at the idea that partner could read it as a desire to show duplication of values. I have made this frank admission to console or appease those readers who feel the same way about it. But this does not mean for one moment that I think there is justice in their stand. Mind you, I do not mean that the recommended redouble has a conventional duplication showing meaning in this case. I merely do maintain that no other logical interpretation is conceivable. Why else should South redouble his partner's cue bid? Surely not because he wanted to play at five hearts redoubled! Could it be because he felt, after hearing North's announcement about heart control, that there was a sure slam in the hand? No because in that case South would bid the spade slam.

There is one test of a bid that I have found infallible. It is just this: Since it is extremely rare that there are two or more absolutely correct bids in a given situation, it follows that any bid which has absolutely nothing wrong with it must, per se, be absolutely right!

West opened the heart ace, and when East followed with the queen, continued the suit. Declarer won with the king, and in a fury of haste to get rid of his losing heart, led three rounds of diamonds, throwing the heart on the last. West, however, ruffed and now, soundly analyzing that there was only one chance to get two more tricks, risked an unimportant possible overtrick by underleading his club ace. East won with the king and returned his fourth heart. Now declarer was helpless to shut out West's spade queen for the setting trick.

The declarer had defeated himself by his unnecessary dash for a discard. All he had to do was give up any thought of finessing for the spade queen, lay down the ace and king from his own hand, and then start running dummy's diamonds. If two rounds remained untruffed by the defenders, the contract would be safe, since on a third round declarer would discard his heart and be quite indifferent as to when the spade queen appeared. Obviously, on this easy and correct line of play, declarer never could have lost more than one trump, one heart, and one club.

Father Should Approve Of Son Entering College

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—We are a group of boys who disagree with what you say about girls not going steady with boys until they are engaged and the wedding day set. How, if a girl and boy do not go steady together, is the boy to get acquainted with her and find out whether he wants her for a wife or not? How can he tell if she would be true as a wife if she hasn't been true as a steady? We boys don't care to go with a girl who goes with other boys. That's our side of the story. D. H.

Dorothy Dix

The ever-increasing number of old maids is to be largely accounted for by the fact that so many girls let themselves be lured into the unfair arrangement of "keeping company" with boys who monopolized them for years and kept all eligible suitors away, and who then decided that, after all, they didn't like the way Mary Jane did her hair, or that they

Nothing Girl Can Do

And there's nothing the girl can do about it. She was not engaged to the boy. He had never mentioned marriage to her. He was perfectly free to kiss and ride away whenever he liked. And he didn't even consider that he had wronged her by letting her waste the years in which a girl has to make her matrimonial hay upon him.

That is why I urge girls not to go steady with one boy to the exclusion of all others until he has shown unmistakably that his attentions are with intentions. If she is wise, she has more than one string to her bow. It is time enough to settle down to one man when he has put a ring on her finger.

Ways of Finding Out

You ask, how is a boy to find out whether he likes a girl or not if he doesn't go with her steady? Just as you do about getting acquainted with other people. You can find out just as much about a girl's character and intelligence, tastes and habits and whether she comes up to your ideal or not if you see her once or twice a week as you could if every time you went to any place of amusement you had to drag her along.

Of course, the girl gets the hot end of the bargain in the "keeping-company" custom, but it is bad for the boy, too, for many a man marries a woman for whom he has lost his taste and for whom he no longer cares because he has been going with her so long that she expects him to marry her and everybody else expects him to marry her, and he hasn't the nerve to break with her.

Keep on With Your Education

Dear Miss Dix—I am an 18-year-old boy in the 11th grade and have been offered a good job as errand boy in a large store, with good wages, as wages go for a boy of my age. My father is fairly wealthy and is what is called a self-made man. He finished school in the eighth grade and he wants me to stop school and go to work, setting himself as an example that you do not need an education to succeed.

My mother is a college graduate and wants me to go on to school, but she is patient and doesn't like to antagonize my father and put the law down to Dad that I am not going to stop school. Will you please advise me what to do to keep peace in the family. I love both and do not want to offend either of them. I am an only child. JOHN.

Answer:

By all means keep on with your education, unless you want to be an errand boy the balance of your life. The first question that will be asked you whenever you apply for a position will be: What school did you graduate from? And if you have to admit that you haven't even a high school education, you will find it almost impossible to get any worthwhile situation.

Times have changed since your father was a boy. In his day there were not the opportunities for getting an education that there are now, and not so much stress was put upon what they called "book learning."

But now in a mechanized world, with a knowledge of machinery almost as essential as knowing how to read and write, with all sorts of engineering projects being carried on, with new developments in radios and airplanes and undreamed-of discoveries in chemistry, a boy without an education is just hopelessly handicapped.

Certainly your father owes it to you to give you a chance in life, and you should insist on his letting you continue your education.

Don't Marry Until Certain

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young man who has been going around with several girls. Have finally decided that it is time I married and am trying to pick out one of my companions as a wife. I have narrowed the field down to five, but I can't make up my mind which one to take because I love all, though each is entirely different from the other. I suppose I love variety. I wish I were King Solomon, for then I could marry them all. H. M. S.

Answer:

May I recall to you that even King Solomon, who had a thousand wives who doubtless comprised all of the 5 varieties of feminine pulchritude and charm, exclaimed after contemplating his aggregation, "Stay me with flagons, comfort me with apples, for I am SICK of love."

And probably you would have the same experience if you could follow his example and marry all the pretties.

However, let me advise you not to marry any woman while you are minutes of our time, we often grow impatient because they do not show professional skill in catching flies or in hitting home-runs.

We should try to regain the child's system of values and then we'd realize that skill in baseball or swimming, football or wrestling, is rated far higher in a boy's world than tangible objects like automobiles and membership in a ritzy Country Club.

How many times have we fathers failed to sit down with our children and teach them how to build kites or whistle out a workable whistle? How often do we teach them how to play ball or throw a forward pass?

Or to high jump or hurdle, or do various types of dive? It is so easy for us to pass the buck to the Boy Scout master and hope that he makes up for our own lack.

A Test For Fathers

After a busy day, I admit that most men prefer to settle down in an easy chair with their newspapers. To repeated urging by their children that they come out to play, they either exclaim, "Don't bother me, I'm busy," or else they stall indefinitely with "Wait till I get through here."

Many of those children keep on waiting for years until they are grown and the chance for comradeship between father and son has passed. In rare cases, like Gordon's, the child is so humiliated by not being adept in the customary games and youthful sports, that he cannot go on.

A few years ago, I conducted a survey of 1,500 children ranging in ages from 4 to 18, asking them what they liked and disliked about their fathers. Their remarks were very enlightening.

I summarized their 50 most frequent compliments and their 50 commonest criticisms. The resulting "Test for Fathers" is most helpful and illuminating. Send a dime and long, self-addressed envelope for a copy. Use it for a weekly inventory. I employ it myself.

SANTA GIANT-KILLER

BY SIGRID ARNE

The story so far: Eric, a fisherman's son who has set out on a year's adventures, leaves with Santa for Toyland. Santa is seeking some one brave enough to help the good, gray Queen. He intends to test Eric's courage.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Find Hovee Wrought by Chimney Witch

Santa and Eric made a circle in the air over the Toyshop chimneys before their sleigh settled down on the snow. Santa peered out and exclaimed, "Good gracious! Look!"

Eric looked and saw that the Toyshop was a brown, low building with wide roofs. Great fire chimneys grew all around. But the chimney was broken off close to the eaves and red bricks lay scattered over the snow.

He could see little gnomes—chubby little men with long ears—running around excitedly. He saw Mrs. Santa in a red dress waving up at Santa's sleigh as though she wanted him to hurry.

The sleigh had no sooner settled on the snow than Santa hopped out like a boy and ran to Mrs. Santa, shouting, "What has happened?"

Eric followed and heard Mrs. Santa say, "Oh, I'm glad you're back. The chimney witch is here again. You should see the dolls!"

"Dear! Dear!" said Santa. He ran into the Toyshop with Mrs. Santa and Eric followed. They saw several dolls with broken arms. Some of them couldn't even walk because they had broken legs. And over the whole Toyshop there was a thick coat of soot. It streaked dolls' dresses and blackened the dolls' cribs.

Visitor Presented

"Good Gracious!" said Santa. He sank into his big armchair by the fireplace and picked up one little doll that was holding out her broken arm to him.

Mrs. Santa sank into a chair opposite him.

"Oh," said Santa looking at Eric, "we have a visitor, Mrs. Santa. This is the lad I told you about." Eric bowed and Mrs. Santa managed a bright smile for him. But she was so worried about the witch that she started right in to tell Santa what had happened.

"It was just an hour ago," she said. "The tin soldiers wanted to try those new fire engines. They hooked together all the ladders and stood them up inside the chimney. They started to climb up. But the first thing I knew one tin soldier fell back into the fireplace all bent and twisted. Then all of them fell back."

"Clouds of soot poured into the room. We tried to close up the fireplace, but then the witch slipped in a window behind us and pushed all those dolls off the shelves. Now we can't find her."

Mrs. Santa stopped talking and all over the Toyshop there was a fearful murmur of little dolls. The doll fairies flew around putting them to bed. Santa's fingers flew as he talked. In a twinkling he had made another arm for the doll on his lap. Then he moved over to his workbench to fix the other dolls. But his forehead was wrinkled with worry.

No Telling When

"You see, Eric," said Santa, "there's no telling when that witch will be back."

"Is there no way to catch her, Sire?" asked Eric.

"We've tried other times," said Santa. "But she is a chimney witch and she can set fire to any trap we make."

"Could we shoot her?"

"Yes, but no one here is swift enough," said Santa. "She can change into a puff of smoke quicker than you draw breath."

"Where does she hide?" asked Eric.

"We're not sure. But when she's angry like this she usually comes back at midnight to do more mischief. She slips down the chimney," said Santa.

"Then I will try to shoot her at midnight," said Eric.

"If you try, and fail, she will bewitch you," said Santa.

Eric laughed. "I'm not afraid."

TOMORROW: The witch is caught.

Teachers are Advised to Avoid Group Punishment

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Who was that? The scholar who did that raise his hand." No hand is raised and the angry teacher repeats the order. "The boy who threw that paper was raise his hand." Still no hand is raised.

"Very well. Nobody did it I suppose. I just imagined it. Very well. If by three o'clock, the boy who did it does not own up, and nobody informs upon him, the whole class will stay in for half an hour every day for the week."

Now some of the children have work to do after school. Some of them have special lessons by appointment. Some have appointments with the doctor or the dentist or the relatives of the family. Parents expect the children at the usual hour. All that is disregarded. The whole class stays in, silent, rebellious and sullen.

Teacher Is at Fault

One boy offended. He did not confess and nobody will tell on him. That is the code of the school. To expect the class to tell is to expect them to dishonor themselves. To punish them for dishonoring themselves is silly. It is almost unjust. Nobody should be, nobody is, in a same community, punished for what someone else has done. Yet the teacher who is credited with being a leader of childhood forgets all this and keeps the class in after school for five afternoons.

Of course, the parents complain. The teacher by this time feels she must justify herself. She stands firmly on her authority. The principal usually feels he cannot interfere. The children get the idea that there is no justice, no fairness in these people, and lose faith and trust in them. That means a loss in discipline, work and school spirit. It is all too bad.

When a pupil does something that demands investigation and punishment, make the investigation but don't ask other children to tell on their companion—unless the offense is extremely grave and involves the pupil in matters that call for the police and the courts. School offenses are rarely, very rarely, that grave.

An Expression of Boredom

Whispering, throwing wads of paper, giggling and the like, are not worth taking school time for correction. The fault is not with the pupils, but lies in the teaching. Children who are being well taught are centered on the work before them and there is no talking, no misconduct that calls for an interruption of the work. In properly conducted classrooms whispering, communications of many sorts, co-operation, action, are the right kind of behavior. In the classroom of the unprepared, undirected, unknowing teacher, the whispering, giggling, shoving, tossing of notes and wads are the expression of boredom. There is no need for investigation and wholesale punishment. The cause is plain. Better teaching will bring better behavior.

Parents have the right and the duty to protect against group punishments. They are unjust, ineffective, wasteful. They are the indication of misdirected teaching, and the teaching needs remedial attention. Discipline, like instruction, should be individual, suited to the needs of the pupil under consideration. The class ought not to be held accountable for the misdeed of one pupil.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

The Road to Shani Lun

By Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY: Lynn Britton's forced journey to Shani Lun to marry the Prince of that Mongolian land has been a succession of captures and escapes, each more dangerous than the last. Now she has once more escaped Temu Darin, the Prince's incorruptible friend, and finds herself free, but in a revolutionary city about which she knows nothing.

Chapter 22

Strange Meeting

The sentry hastened down to join the keeper at the wrought iron gate fencing off the dock from a wide stone-stepped street that led down to the river, swarming with water carriers.

Lynn saw a woman dressed in European clothes and carrying a frilly red umbrella emerge from the mob of watermen. She spoke to the gate-keeper and pointed to the junk displaying the flag of Shani Lun. After a moment he admitted her, and the sentry turned to conduct her to the quay.

"She must be a friend of still intrigued by others. Wait until you find some one woman who comprises in her own person all of the qualities that you desire in a wife. Many men should never marry. Certainly one who loves variety in women should stay single."

"I became lost and the planes went off without me," Peggy said plaintively. "So I raised a red parasol to protect me from the communists and came looking for Mr. Temu Darin. The planes got away in this get-up."

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

GOING-AWAY GIFT

It always difficult to know what to send people who are going on a long journey because few travelers like carrying extra things. On this subject, one young woman writes the following: "I would like to get my employer and his wife each a book for a going-away gift. If this would be proper. They have been very good to me personally and although our association has been a business one, I believe such a personal gesture on my part would not be out of place. Or is there something other than books that you would suggest?"

In answer to this, see no possible impropriety in sending them books, and if you happen to know their tastes well enough to know of definite ones they want to read, so much the better. Remember, however, that nothing is so useless as an unwanted book. On the other hand, a much wanted one and therefore not to be discarded, is a packing nuisance. This reminds me that if you can give books that you know they will want to keep, you could enclose a duplicate wrapper addressed and stamped in which these books (or perhaps others) can without effort be sent home after they have been read. Other going-away presents that most travelers find useful, no matter how many they already have, are such things as mechanical pencils, fountain pens, or—of they have a camera—a filing book to store their films and pictures in.

Common Sense in Bridge

Winning Rules

Dear Mrs. Post: In our bridge club each one puts a small sum in the bank and at the end of the evening this money is divided for highest and second highest scores. In addition to this, the hostess buys a small trifle for the low score. Up to now the hostess has not taken the low prize or let her husband take it, and yet she will, if she is fortunate enough to win, take the money. How can you reason this?

Answer: Very easily, because since every one, including the host and hostess, puts in the same amount of money, all have an equal right to compete for it. But when the hostess buys a prize, she never takes her own prize—nor does any member of her family.

Brazil Friendly but Wants To Control Its Own Wealth, Pan-American League Told

"Brazil's industrial policy as well as the general governmental trend is decidedly nationalistic," Mrs. J. W. Apping, who spent 10 years teaching in Brazil, told members of the Pan-American League at a meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. P. Hughes, 117 E. Franklin street.

"Due to lack of capital and highly skilled technical workers, foreign capital has taken advantage of Brazil," the speaker went on, "and many of her resources have been used to enrich foreign investors. The present regime has constantly striven by various decrees, the formation of federal institutes of control and by the development of her educational system to put the wealth of resources of Brazil back into the hands of the Brazilians."

Speaking of the system of modern labor laws which the government has set up in Brazil, Mrs. Apping said, "Unfortunately this regimentation has not reached the great agricultural class as yet which represents over one-half of Brazil's laborers. Herein lies a very real problem regarding foreign trade," she said.

Another problem facing the United States is that of foreign exchange, Mrs. Apping said, especially since the barter agreements

Joyce Timmers to Represent City in Declamatory Recital

BY ENOLA BRANDT

Joyce Timmers, a senior at Appleton high school, was selected Monday night to represent the high school at the annual Fox river valley declamatory recital at West Green Bay high school Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 11. Miss Timmers was chosen informally by a group of judges following the Dame declamatory recital presented in the high school auditorium.

Rose Wilder Lane's "Let the Hurricane Roar" was Miss Timmers' selection. Sincere and sympathetic interpretation on the part of the reader made the character of the indomitable pioneer woman truly alive. Excellent, too, was her description of the hordes of grasshoppers as they descended upon the wheat fields and the audience sensed the utter terror and exhaustion of this couple determined to hold their homestead.

Mary Bob Knapp's reading was "De Classe" by Zoe Aikins, the story of an aristocratic English woman who has "lost class" in her social group. Although this was a sophisticated piece, Miss Knapp captured the subtle undertones in the character of this woman who lived recklessly but without compromise.

Victoria Ring, an actress who had received the dread judgment of "passe," was the central character in Betty Greb's reading authored by Mc Elbert Wood. The intensity of the climax was sustained as the actress proves the injustice of the criticisms by saving the life of her son.

Ballet Dancer "Eternity and Beyond" by Wayne Newton was Barbara Ehr's choice. The sensitive devotion of the ballet dancer who carried the image of her husband forever with her was well motivated and projected in spite of the intangible quality of the reading.

Sharp delineation of character made June Weisgerber's reading, "Life with Father," a more than creditable piece of work. Vinnie, Father and young Clarence were very vital people as Miss Weisgerber presented them. Her declamation was a cutting from the current stage success by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse.

H. H. Helble, principal, presided at the recital and presented each of the readers with the official speech award of the high school. George Dame, for whom the recital is named, sponsored the program. Miss Ruth Mc Kennan, speech director, prepared the cuttings and did the coaching.

Two Stephen Foster melodies, "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair" and "Beautiful Dreamer," were sung by Jean Risse accompanied by Barbara Small at the piano. Carol Jury also sang a vocal solo at the close. A reception for the participants was given in the Early American Room by Curtin Call, dramatic organization of the high school, following the

Three Teachers' Parties Top Long List of Informal Pre-Holiday Social Events

Three teachers' parties were added last night to the already long list of pre-Christmas dinners, luncheons and informal parties with which these days are filled.

Morgan school teachers honored Miss Carrie E. Morgan, after whom their school is named, at their Christmas dinner party last night at the school. Miss Morgan spoke on "Christmas in Appleton Years Ago," and Miss Irene Bidwell read an original poem dedicating the teachers' room at the school to Miss Morgan. It will be called the Carrie E. Morgan room. Christmas carols were sung, and after the distribution of gifts, the MacDowell Male chorus, which uses the Morgan school for rehearsals Monday evening, entertained the teachers with several selections. Cards and other games completed the evening's entertainment. Mrs. Leila Mortimer was general chairman of the committees in charge of the party.

A dinner party at the Candle Glow Tea room entertained teachers of Columbus school last night. Honors at the bridge games which followed the dinner went to Miss Mary McLaughlin and Miss Martha Karrow. Miss Meta Froehlich and Miss Josephine Kovshak had arranged the party.

After dinner at the Candle Glow Tea room last night, Franklin school teachers went to Mrs. Arthur Zschaeche's home on E. Winnebago street for cards and the exchange of gifts. Miss Lois Smith and Miss Kathryn Ausman had been in charge of arrangements for the party.

her birthday anniversary. Those present were the Misses Rosemary Baum, Rosalie Nussbaum, Angelina Lindauer, Shirley Heinrich, Rita and Cecilia Heimermann, Valeria West and Janetta Schroeder. Cards and dancing furnished the entertainment, Miss Lindauer and Miss Nussbaum taking the honors at cards.

Mrs. Henry Hoh, 1009 N. State street, was honored at a dinner party Sunday evening in celebration of her seventy-third birthday anniversary. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Hoier and sons, Leland and Leslie, Hortonville; Miss Mildred Jantz, Ellington; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hoh and daughter, Letha, Greenville; Clarence Hoh and son, Donald, Kaukauna; and Mrs. Louis Haase, Neenah.

Friday, the thirteenth, has many dire implications for the superstitious, but for a number of Appleton couples who received intriguing party invitations in the mail recently, this Friday has about it an aura of special mystery. The invitations, signed Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, request the guests to gather at the Chicago and North Western railway depot at 7:30 Friday night for a "trip to the North Pole" and ask that the invited persons reply to a designated post office box.

The mysterious invitations tell nothing more, give no indication as to the hosts or hostesses or what the ultimate destination of the party will be but a sleighride is indicated from the tone of the wording. As nearly as can be determined, about 135 invitations have been issued for the affair.

The last supper and card party for the Menasha club before Christmas will take place at 6:30 Wednesday night at the Menasha clubrooms. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hopfensperger, Neenah, will be co-chairmen and their committee will

Erica Morini Lauds Music Of America

Erica Morini, famed violinist who will appear at Lawrence Memorial chapel next Monday evening as the second number on the annual Artist series, though a Viennese by birth, is an earnest admirer of America and the United States. She says, "A country like this, where freedom is a reality, gives the artist an opportunity to expand and develop. Especially is the atmosphere of democracy an advantageous one for women who wish to take their place in the arts. For as we know, so many of the countries of the Old World have taken from women the place in society they spent so many years of struggle to gain."

Madame Morini feels that American audiences have improved tremendously in their musical knowledge and appreciation. When she first came to this country, though she was warmly greeted everywhere she played, she had the feeling that the musical background of her listeners was not quite as great as her own.

"Today all this is changed," she says, "and audiences here seem to me even more musically literate than those in the European capitals. Perhaps it is because Americans have such a marvelous opportunity to hear good music on the radio, or perhaps because the outstanding musicians of Europe have come here to escape the chaos and turmoil of the Old World. But whatever the reason, the intelligent understanding of American listeners is everywhere evident today."

Believing that American music is notoriously underrated, Madame Morini feels that the same sort of prejudice that has looked down on women's advances in music has, for its disdain of anything new, tried to keep down the estimate of this country's vital native music.

Pointing out that there are composers here whose work compared with that being written anywhere, the artist says, "Men like Barber

Rebekahs Participate In District Meeting

They were Mrs. Alice Ralph, Mrs. Oscar Bruss, Mrs. George Jackson, Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. John McCarter, Mrs. Henry Breitenfeldt, Mrs. Amelia Finke, Mrs. Archie McGregor, Mrs. E. W. St. Clair and Mrs. Orville Perrine. The next district meeting will take place in April at Stockbridge.

About 75 members of Valley Shrine, No. 10, White Shrine of Jerusalem, attended the dinner and Christmas party last night at the Masonic temple at which the Neenah-Menasha members were hostesses. Christmas candles, Yule logs and evergreen decorated the tables, and guests were present from Oshkosh and Clintonville. A ceremonial followed the dinner and gifts were exchanged. Mrs. George Sherman, Neenah, was chairman of the event.

Ronyak, Minneapolis, Minn., which took place Saturday, Nov. 30, at St. Rita's church, Milwaukee. Attendants were Miss Helen Marie Groh, Appleton, and S. E. Rosseter, Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. Ronyak will make their home in Milwaukee where the former is employed by the King Midas flour company. The bride is a beauty operator in Milwaukee.

Mayor Goodland, and Heber Pelkey are Local Representatives

Appleton and Neenah-Menasha were among the cities of over 10,000 population for which defense councils were appointed today by Ralph S. Kingsley, chairman of the state council of national defense.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and Heber H. Pelkey were named to the Appleton board and the Neenah-Menasha council is composed of Mayor E. A. Kallala, Neenah, Mayor William H. Jensen, Neenah, George W. Pyott, Jr., Neenah, Patrick Curran, Neenah, and Arthur Guttman, Neenah.

All local councils, except Milwaukee's will include the mayor, representatives of the chamber of commerce, labor, county board and agriculture. Appleton's labor representative has not been named. Later the local council will appoint county board and agriculture representatives.

May Add Members

Kingsley asserted that "additional local councils and committees to cooperate with the state and local councils will be appointed as the future needs will demand."

He said the state council was gathering information of existing manufacturing plant capacity, agricultural production, communications, transportation and housing and that means of protecting persons and property against sabotage, together with protection of public health, also would be studied.

He also announced that Governor Heil had added five members to the state council. They are Dave Corcoran, Milwaukee, representing the Wisconsin State Paid Firemen's association; Dr. C. A. Harper, Madison, Wisconsin State Board of Health; Lyle George, Racine, Wisconsin Policemen's Protective association; Leo Schend, Kenosha, Wisconsin Sheriffs association, and Miss Frances Zull, Madison, director of home economics at the University of Wisconsin.

Even a Game Warden Can Get Mixed Up on Fishing Dates

There's always a good deal of confusion over Wisconsin ice fishing regulations and this year it got to the local game warden, Emil Kramer. With the advent of cold weather, Emil's phone began buzzing last week with inquiries concerning season dates and restricted areas this winter. Emil, while always willing to straighten people out on hunting or fishing rules, decided he could make life less troublesome for telephone operators by coming down to the Post-Crescent and putting "the dope" into print.

Now, however, Emil's phone is buzzing more than ever because in the process he grabbed the wrong book and the information carried in Saturday's paper conflicts with other reports.

Cloudy Skies Are Forecast

Thermometer at 28 Today; Monday's Top Reading 41 Degrees

Gray clouds hung over Appleton today, but up to noon there had been no sign of the predicted snow flurries.

Cloudy tonight and tomorrow, with colder weather in the north-central and eastern parts of Wisconsin, was the forecast issued by the Milwaukee bureau.

Temperature behavior in Appleton last night and today was unspectacular. The thermometer stood at 28 degrees at 11:30 this morning, two degrees higher than the 24-hour minimum recorded at 7 o'clock this morning. The high yesterday was 41 at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Key West, Fla., with 74, and Yellowstone, with eight above, stood at the top and bottom of the nation's weather chart yesterday.

The extended weather forecast for the period from this evening to Saturday evening follows:

Region of the Great Lakes: Temperature will average near normal except below normal along Lake Superior and western shore Lake Michigan. Slowly falling trend most of period. Precipitation above average lower Michigan and lower lake region, about average elsewhere, occurring principally Friday and Saturday.

Upper Mississippi valley: Temperature will average below normal except near normal in Illinois. Slowly falling trend most of period. Precipitation about average except above average in Illinois, occurring principally Friday and Saturday.

Re-Armament Needs 'Equitable Distribution,' Roosevelt Says

ever else that is necessary to keep democracy a democratic force." Meanwhile, federation officials claimed support in high administration quarters for a revision of federal farm programs under which crop prices would be pegged at higher levels and parity payments would be eliminated.

Baltimore—(7)—Secretary Wickard pledged further administration efforts today to enlarge agriculture's share of the national income but asked farmers to unite with other economic groups to make the country strong in the present world crisis.

"Agriculture today faces a new test," he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"We are called on for an intense effort to help defend the American democracy which gives us opportunity and freedom. There is loose in the world an evil idea totally opposed to democracy. It is dangerously clever and effective in destroying democracy."

"The nation's welfare and our group's welfare," the agriculture department chief said, "require consultation and unified action."

Wickard declared agriculture had made great progress under the present farm program.

"Through this program it has been possible: first, to get a larger share of the national income for farm families; second, to conserve and make better use of the nation's soil resources; third, to keep on hand adequate reserves to protect both consumers and producers against scarcity; fourth, to put agricultural abundance to use by distributing surpluses among those in need; fifth, to provide a complete program of agricultural credit to lower interest rates; sixth, to assist low-income farm families; and seventh, to take electricity to more and more farms."

Chester A. Davis, member of the national defense advisory commission, asked American farmers today to forget their "prejudices" against Latin American agricultural imports in the interest of "total defense" against European dictatorships.

"The colossal horror that is astride the world," he declared, requires sacrifices of all groups in a mobilization program to make the western hemisphere "entirely unassailable."

"Farmers will have their own and very serious adjustments to make," Davis said. "Defense needs may require that domestic production be supplemented by increased imports, as we see happening in the case of some grades of wool."

"Cooperation with Latin America may require farmers to re-examine most critically some of their traditional patterns and prejudices."

Davis is agriculture's representative on the defense commission. One of the major problems before the convention is an American farm trade situation in which exports are declining sharply and imports increasing.

"Our hemispheric relationships and problems," the farm leader said, "ought to be looked at clearly and courageously by every organized farm group in America."

"We cannot be military friends and economic enemies with Latin America at one and the same time."

Tells Where He Bought Liquor, Sentence Cut

Judge Thomas H. Ryan has changed the judgment in the case in which Gordon Wilson, 20, 710 S. Wilson decided to tell the court where he made his purchase and Judge Ryan changed the sentence to 10 days. Wilson indicated he would pay the fine.

make no contribution to pay for national defense, while we ask our boys to work 8 to 12 hours a day in army camps for $30 a month.

"We feel that we should draft all money—that is, that all money should pay taxes toward the defense program."

Emphasizing that he spoke for President Roosevelt, Morgenthau said the half-billion dollars worth of notes to be offered tomorrow was only a starter in the program of making government securities subject to full taxation.

Congress, he said, would be asked for authority to lift the tax-exemption clause from all future federal bond issues, including United States savings bonds and government-guaranteed obligations.

Further, the treasury will seek congressional permission to launch a nationwide campaign to sell "baby bonds" in denominations as small as $3—possibly even to sell bond stamps at 25 cents each, as was done in World War days.

And the dignified cabinet member nodded approval to a suggestion that the bond-selling drive revive the 1917 custom of encouraging pretty girls to give away kisses to the bond-buyers.

PAIN IN LOWER SPINE

People have been educated for years that lower back pains were caused by about everything else but a pressure on nerves. When continued treatments for years failed to correct the pains, many gave up hopes of recovery. In the past 20 years Chiropractors have examined many of this type of sufferers and, by correcting the cause, have won the warm friendship of the patients and their enthusiastic recommendation of Chiropractors to their friends. The majority of all back pains are primarily due to a distortion of the spinal segments and all the treatments in existence cannot correct the pain unless the spinal segments are adjusted to their more normal relation. If this displacement of vertebrae is corrected, regardless of what method is used, a correction should be accomplished. Chiropractors specializing in the adjustment of the spine are scientifically trained to adjust this type of spine weakness.

The Road to Shani Lun

just in time. Fighting has broken out in the Mahammedan quarters and I hear an army of revolutionists is approaching from the south. But you, Lynn! How did you escape from the pirates? I thought they had taken you up the river."

"I broke away and swam back," jibed Lynn.

Peggy was so busy planning a foundation for her own position here that she swallowed the absurd statement without question. They turned at the sound of a powerful motorboat as it shot up the river and headed in towards the wharf where they stood.

Lynn recognized its pilot as Bula, the pock-marked Mongol, who seemed to be equally skillful with a gasoline engine or a camel.

Surprise for Temu

Temu stood up before the boat came to a stop, and at sight of the girls, almost lost his balance with surprise and consternation. Joy bubbled up within Lynn.

He jumped to the wharf and came forward. "How did you get out here?" he asked, and before receiving a reply, demanded of Peggy, "What became of you? We searched everywhere and had to send the planes on without you."

"I went for a walk and got lost," said Peggy. "Did Sam go on without me?"

Temu gave her a sharp glance. "Your husband did not believe you were lost." And, without waiting for her comment, he turned to Lynn. "How did this happen?"

Peggy answered for her: "Lynn escaped and swam back down the river."

"Well!" he murmured. He gazed at Lynn, at her high color and mischievous blue eyes. He saw in her acquiescence that there was a secret between them, a loyalty like the understanding between members in a family quarrel.

"Well, have to make plans for getting out of here," he said, and turned the girls into the shed, explaining to Peggy that the warehouse, a property of the Prince of Shani Lun, contained an apartment in which the girls would be safe, he hoped, until he could make arrangements to take them from Lanfou.

He observed the screen cut from the ventilator and the unlocked door.

Chan had reappeared and followed them in, his usually inexpressive face alive with consternation. He had undoubtedly thought Temu's battle with the girl was won and it would be safe to leave the keys in their accustomed place.

Peggy looked around. "How cunning and mysterious!" she said. They went into the living-room and Temu asked her to sit down. He spoke bluntly.

"Your husband believed you intended to miss the plane. He said you had quarreled with him."

Peggy waved a hand airily. "What of it? He deserved to be quarreled with and left. I thought I'd stay in Lanfou and watch the fun. I've never been in a revolution before."

"How did you think you'd be taken care of?"

She took off her wide-brimmed hat. "You're here, a representative of the powerful Prince of Shani Lun. You wouldn't let the revolutionists stand me up against a wall and shoot me, would you?"

"They wouldn't waste ammunition that way," interrupted Lynn. "They burn you alive. At least, that's been the custom in the past."

Peggy shivered. "Oh, how terrible!" Then she regarded Lynn. "Nothing had ever happens to you. You have the weirdest experiences and always come out alive."

Temu smiled. "You mustn't base your activity on Lynn's. Your destiny is different."

Peggy sat forward in her chair. "Tell me more about my destiny."

"Right now, I'll try to get a message through to your husband that you're safe."

Peggy shrugged.

He went to the writing desk, wrote a chit, and gave it to Chan to deliver. Then he turned to Peggy. "Do you happen to be qualified to pilot an airplane?"

"I think I am," interrupted Lynn. "Not I," said Peggy. "Why?" She was sauntering around the room looking at the pictures on the walls.

"Thought I might get you startled off at once for Nanking. I have a plane there."

"I wouldn't think of leaving with Lynn as pilot," Peggy added. "Why?"

"I wouldn't think of sending her with you as a pilot," Temu retorted.

Chan came in with a message. Revolutionists had captured three of the forts above the city as well as the airport. Uprisings and massacres were continuing in villages to the north. River traffic had been held up farther downstream.

Temu made his decision. "I had no papers to fly in here and I have none to fly out. The quicker we leave the better. If we can not make Watch Tower Wells before it is too late to land this evening, we shall have to stay in the air all night."

"Why not go straight to Delun?" asked Lynn in a dancing tone. "I'm sure Peggy would love to meet the Prince."

New Flight

Temu shook his head. "I'm sure Mrs. Telford would be bored. Some other time, perhaps, when the Prince is not on his honeymoon."

"Is the Prince recently married, too?" Peggy inquired.

"He soon will be married."

Lynn didn't like the way Temu said it. She knew he was getting back at her for making the suggestion, but a chill of foreboding gripped her heart. He did not want her to have the protection of the presence of another American girl.

Temu went on speaking to Peggy. "Did you bring any clothing except that you have on?"

"Not a thing. I saw how miraculously Lynn was fitted out from scratch."

"Scratch is right," Lynn shuddered. "Mr. Wallace and I ate lunch that day in an inn that was full of fleas."

"You can be thankful it wasn't worse," Temu observed with amusement. He looked her over. "Change into your heaviest dress. You'd better give the Russian fur coat to Mrs. Telford. There's a Mongol coat of mine that you may wear."

Peggy stared. "He talks to you like a father."

"Or a jailer," Lynn suggested dangerously.

Temu apologized. "You must excuse my brevity. I'm an army man. Be ready in ten minutes." He went out.

Peggy followed Lynn into the bedroom and watched her dig into the bag that had been brought from Watch Tower Wells. "Where did those clothes come from?" she demanded.

"Perhaps the gentleman keeps them around for his lady friends," Lynn suggested flippantly.

"That dress fits you awfully well," said Peggy slowly. "You may be his lady friend. I thought you went into his arms last night as if you'd been there before. And the way he looked at you—"

Lynn thought fast. "Don't let your imagination run away with you," she advised crisply. "These are my clothes, I'll admit. You heard last night that Temu Darin was trying to persuade me to continue the journey to Shani Lun. He is the Prince's friend, not mine, you can depend on that." She spoke with a heated sincerity and turned as a rap sounded at the open door.

Temu Darin's eyes held hers for a moment with that elusive spark of amusement and understanding and something else that had a power to flutter her pulses.

Between them, they had Peggy completely bewildered. "But what really has become of your brother?" she asked Lynn.

Lynn surmised that Sam had told Peggy his doubts of Dick's integrity. "Dick seems to know how to take care of himself," she said coldly.

"If you'll come now," Temu turned and they made their way through several divisions of the warehouse until they came to a covered waterway in which floated the silver and red low-wing cabin plane.

He took the control himself, the Mongol at his side. The plane roared out on the smooth, deep-flowing expanse of water and soared into the blue followed by a few surprised and futile cannon balls from the nearest fort.

When they had lifted to a level with the northern hills they felt a jolt of the plane as it struck rough air and saw wild, black storm clouds

Clapper Thinks Management Personnel Is Bottlenecked

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—War department officials are complaining of a shortage, not only of skilled workers, but of management personnel. They give the shortage in both respects as a reason for revising plans for a large number of small munitions plants to combine them into about 15 big units.

Complaint of a shortage in management men is heard everywhere around the defense commission. It is represented as being especially pressing in the aviation industry. Because of the enormous expansion, in some instances of four or five times previous capacity, administrative personnel has had to be diluted. Available production engineers have been spread out so thinly that complaint is being heard about inefficient management in some plants. Management personnel has become a bottleneck.

That leads to much discussion of giving the defense commission a larger supervisory roll over defense industry. Everyone has his own variation of the idea, but one essential thing needed appears to be more power for William S. Knudsen and more engineering staff.

The central idea is that Knudsen would send his own production men into factories to coach for faster production, to spot time-losing methods, to consult with factory management on improvements in operations. Some think an aircraft production chief should be set up under Knudsen, and perhaps production chiefs for other general fields. These staffs of production men drawn from industry would as boiling up on the northeast rim of the world.

working on defense there is realization that we are not getting the results that might be obtained out of what we have to work with. Almost no one is satisfied with the organization as at present—yet it is full of able men, who are working hard, if with some sense of frustration.

Lack Leadership Expected From President Roosevelt

What is being felt here too is the lack of leadership that had been expected from President Roosevelt. He insisted at the outset upon being boss, upon keeping the defense organization headed into the White House. He refused to appoint a chairman and undertook to be the sparkplug himself.

The general feeling here is that the sparkplug hasn't been sparking since before election. The defense organization is feeling the lack of drive at the top. At the last meeting of the defense group with the president, the whole question of organization, serious as it had become, was passed over without discussion. Nobody knows what the president intends to do, if anything, about this situation.

Some outside propaganda groups are saying that the defense effort is being made in a negative atmosphere. Some say that the only way to arouse ourselves to the real effort necessary would be to go into a state of full emergency instead of the state of limited emergency declared by executive order when the war in Europe began. One hears that in some eastern plants, near the seaboard, a high tempo exists, but that further west there seems to be no driving sense of urgency, so that defense work is carried on in the routine tempo of ordinary commercial production, with even the 5-day week instead of 7-day plant operation. The sense of a rush order is not as strong as is needed. Many here hope that President Roosevelt will take hold when he returns and put drive into the defense effort. Around the defense commission some think that is the only way activity can be speeded up out in the country.

Possibly the president has been too tired to throw himself into this, or possibly he has become sensitive about campaign charges that he was seeking dictatorial powers. It is possible that the third-term business has put Roosevelt on the defensive and caused him to slow down less he seem to be justifying the forecasts of his political opponents. Meanwhile defense suffers.

Postmaster Coyle Urges Patrons to Shop, Mail Early

Volume of Christmas Mail Increases at Menasha Post Office

Menasha—Postmaster J. R. Coyle today urged Menasha residents to do their Christmas shopping and mailing early. He reported that the volume of mail, both incoming and outgoing, already has started to increase. Placards and handbills have been distributed urging post-office patrons to do their mailing early.

Pointing out that only two weeks remain in which to mail Christmas letters and parcels, the postmaster urged patrons to buy their stamps this week to avoid waiting in line. The postmaster warned patrons to be sure that addresses are complete as to cities, street numbers and states. Return addresses should be placed on first class letters and parcel post. Packages should be well-wrapped and tied with strong twine. The heavier the parcel, the heavier the wrappings should be for protection.

On fragile articles such as photographs and framed pictures, wood about the thickness of orange crate material should be used. Articles of value should be insured, he said.

No Special Search
The postmaster asked the public not to call the office for expected letters or parcel post packages as it is impossible to check over hundreds of parcels in search of one particular package. Delivery will be made sometime during the day of its arrival. There never have been any left-overs from one day to the next.

During the week before Christmas it is advisable to place special delivery stamps on both letters and parcels for distant places. Greetings sent first class with a 3 cent stamp may be sealed, many contain a message, and will be forwarded or returned to the sender if the address is not located. First class mail also receives preference in distribution. Greetings sent third class with a cent and a half postage may not be sealed and may contain no message except the name of the sender.

Pastor Urges Greater Appreciation of Beauty

Menasha—The Rev. Perry Jones, pastor of the First Methodist church, Sheboygan, addressed a joint meeting of the Menasha Lions and Rotary clubs Monday noon at Hotel Menasha with "Everybody's Business" as his subject. The speaker said that the world has a cock-eyed sense of values and urged that beauty be appreciated more. He said that friendship should not be sacrificed for principles and declared that the test of a man's character is what he contributes to the world, not the material wealth he accumulates.

Firemen Called

Neenah—Firemen were called at 5:50 Monday afternoon to the home of Edward Kuster, 732 Harrison street, where an oil stove had overflowed. No damage was done.

News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Christmas carols were sung under the direction of Miss Edna Robertson after which gifts were exchanged. Miss Thom and Mrs. Trilling were hostesses. Evergreens, red berries, fruits and nuts were arranged as a centerpiece on the hostess table.

Gold cups will be awarded to winners of first, second and third places in the second annual contest in which home decorations must be lighted from Christmas eve through New Year's eve.

Homes will be judged that week on the following basis: Design and originality, 30 points; Christmas appeal, 20 points; artistic coloring and arrangement of lights, 50 points.

Neenah Cagers Looked Good Even in Defeat

Rockets Will Take On West DePere in Home Gym This Week

Neenah—Despite Neenah's loss of two games in succession, fans who saw the Red Rockets in action at Shawano Friday night have high hopes for the defending champions of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference.

They say of the Rockets, who will tackle West DePere in their second conference game here Friday night, that they showed more team work Friday night than any Neenah team in recent years.

The Neenah squad, which dropped a 3-point decision to the powerful Indians, 31 to 28, is without an outstanding star but there are 10 players nearly on a par with each other. The Indians, on the other hand, were favored to win and by a larger margin than three points.

With Bill Reed, the conference's outstanding scorer as the sparkplug, the Shawano quintet is slated to cop the title.

The Rockets will be favored to take West DePere's measure. Last season, Neenah walloped the Black Phantoms twice, 43 to 19, and 32 to 16.

The Phantoms dropped its opening game Friday night to Kaukauna, 38 to 18. Neenah lost a non-conference game to Appleton, 22 to 14, and trounced Omro, 54 to 3.

In the preliminary game, Neenah's second team will meet the West DePere reserves. The young Rockets have won three straight games.

Members of the local board include Menasha Mayor W. H. Jensen, Neenah Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs; George W. Pyott, Jr., Neenah Chamber of Commerce; Patrick Curran, Neenah, and Arthur Gutzman, Menasha, labor representatives.

Primary members of each board are the mayors of the respective cities, representatives of the local chamber of commerce, and labor organizations. This nucleus will select other members representing agriculture and the county board in each locality, according to Ralph S. Kingsley, Kenosha, chairman of the state council of national defense.

Miss Marcella Taggart, 210 Prospect street, Menasha, underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis Monday afternoon at Theda Clark hospital.

They were charged with violating the bicycle ordinance by riding bicycles on the sidewalk and George Resch, assistant police chief who acts as judge at the bicycle court, impounded the bicycles for three days at the second court session Saturday.

The punishments were the first meted out under the new provisions of the ordinance. A third youth had his bicycle impounded for five days because he was carrying another person on his bicycle. Punishments will vary according to the hazard involved in each offense.

Friday Night Means Scrubbing Up for Saturday's Inspection

BY SERGEANT ERVIN HAERTEL (120th Artillery Band)

Camp Beauregard, La. — After looking at pictures of winter in Appleton, the members of the 120th Field Artillery band would like to get home and engage in winter sports for awhile.

There is only one meaning for the word Saturday as far as the boys in camp are concerned, and that is inspection. If you could wander into camp on a Friday night, you would see boys on their hands and knees scrubbing their floors and singing tunes to the rhythm of a scrubbing brush. After all the work is done, which sometimes takes until 11:30, we're ready to occupy our bunks. Saturday morning we do our last-minute polishing and at 10 o'clock we're ready to be called to attention to welcome our inspecting officer. We had the honor of being inspected by the colonel one Saturday. After the inspection is made, the commanding officer of each unit calls his men together and tells them the fault that was found. To make things more interesting for the boys, a prize was given to the best three tents in the battery street. The penalty for not passing the inspection is confinement to quarters for at least one week.

It was quite an incident when a lieutenant from the headquarters battery was learning how to drive a motorcycle. Unfortunately, he picked the battery street for practice. He lost control of his vehicle and ran into Sergeant Perry's tent. Sergeant John Moyle happened to be sleeping on his bunk and after hearing the crash, he jumped off his bunk, ran to the door way and stared at a motorcycle half-way up the tent and a lieutenant lying on the ground. The crowd that gathered was laughing at the lieutenant. After all, accidents like this can only happen to a private (that's what they tell us).

Hollywood—Various columns and magazines have poked fun at Bob Hope because "he surrounds himself with an army of comedy writers." Seemingly by common consent, they've placed the number of this "army at eleven. Actually, Bob employs six writers—five taken from colleges and only one with previous experience.

But what if he employed 200? Hasn't he been wise in hiring them? Isn't it his job to be funny, to make people laugh? Haven't his writers helped him do that job well? That they have is proved by his radio rating—he's one of the top five, and no few millions of comedy-loving Americans regard him as Comic No. 1.

If employing a staff of writers has done that, then I say to him: Smart boy; hire more and tell with the scoffers!

In commenting on Hope and Staff, I have an advantage over other reporters. In that I've attended many of their conferences. He and his six gagsters REALLY WORK at these meetings. I might add, for benefit of wise-cracking reporters who have made it appear that Bob is a "parrot," repeating witcidisms of his writers, that actually he is most clever of them all, contributing more than his share of the laughs heard on his radio show and in his movies.

Yet Bob has never claimed to be the "whole hog." He gives full credit to his staff, and they in turn worship him. Such mutual admiration makes for co-operation, which in turn accounts for the constant flow of laughs with which Hope makes life merry. Think of that, next time you hear or see him—and bless Bob Hope for being smart and modest enough to know he couldn't do such a good job alone.

IDOL CHATTER: That old rumor about Jackie Cooper being a midget should be thoroughly exploded by now. Kate Smith's remarks: Fame and four-chins! Wonder what Forrest Tucker would look like with those curls plastered down—tight! Those ladies who beef about being "without a stitch to their backs" would be right in style at a Hollywood party. 'Stay Out of War' Thomas Argues

Socialist Leader and Radio Commentator Debate in Milwaukee

Milwaukee — Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, told a Milwaukee audience last night that "the defeat of the Nazi invader is important to us, but to stay out of war is overwhelmingly important."

Thomas' assertion was made during a debate with Clifton Udey, radio commentator, in the town hall meeting held at the Grand avenue Congregational church.

Udey declared that American aid to Great Britain "is the only defense policy that has any chance of being successful," and added:

"We must give Britain merchant ships or she will lose; perhaps even our navy should convoy them. If it should come to a necessity of declaring war, I would be for that, too."

Thomas said that "if we get into war, it will not be by declaration but by some 'incident'—by stumbling as we skirt the brink."

"It would be a war in two oceans and two continents—Europe and Asia," he continued. "Exhaustion, perhaps chaos, certainly dictatorship, would result."

"A more hopeful prospect than any other in this tragic world is that an opportunity may arise, perhaps through the collapse of Italy, for a negotiated peace, with America then able to release positive forces for the upbuilding of civilization."

Udey remarked that the only negotiated peace which Adolf Hitler would consider "would be one that left him master of Europe—an abysmal fate for Britain and us."

Government Granted Review of Damages

Washington — The government was granted yesterday a supreme court review of a decision that the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad was entitled to $177,594 damages as a result of the flooding of its property in Wabasha and Winona counties, Minnesota.

The flooding was part of the plan for the construction of a series of locks and dams in the upper Mississippi river.

Convention delegates discussed a new code to fix prices in the industry which has been without price control since the state supreme court ruled the barber's code unconstitutional.

Missing Union Leader Found in Milwaukee

Milwaukee — Charles S. Thurber, business manager of the electrical workers union No. 494, was found last night on a street corner on the city's south side.

Detective Frank Doyle of the police department said that Thurber was in a state of exhaustion and was suffering from exposure.

Thurber told Doyle he had not been out of southeastern Wisconsin since he said that the union leader could not recall all details of his movements.

The police suggested that Thurber go to a hospital, but he declined and went home.

Breakfast, oatmeal, grapefruit, coffee, bread and butter; dinner, mashed potatoes, baked ham, carrots, siaw, bread, coffee; supper, fried potatoes, cold meats, pickles, peaches, bread, butter and coffee.

The mess sergeant, George Bringham, gave the cooks the day off and did all the cooking and serving of the entire day with the help of four K. P.'s.

Rain fell Saturday night (Nov. 30) and almost all day Sunday creating a great deal of sticky red mud which is very hard to remove from shoes and clothing. It became noticeably colder about noon Sunday and the temperature dropped 15 degrees in six hours.

The Christmas spirit is much in evidence here as a number of the fellows have brought holly leaves and branches into camp from the neighboring swamps and Private "Monk" DeBruin received a package which contained a roll of "stick candy" measuring 18 inches in length, 3 1/2 inches in diameter and weighing five pounds. There have been quite a few packages of food and delicacies sent from the folks at home and they are greatly appreciated by the boys in camp. Any one who receives such a package usually opens it promptly and shares it with his friends. Sergeants Brewer and DeNoble tell us that they now have increased their invitations for Christmas dinner from two to six.

Details Listed

Details for Monday, Dec. 2, were Sergeant Larry Thielke in charge of quarters; the third and fourth platoons on police (cleanup) duty; Privates Vorpal, Weigman, Wolfgram and Zeffrey on K. P.; Private Bedat on sanitary detail and Private Jim Brewer to brigade headquarters as runner. Overcoats were worn to drill Monday morning, and although they were a little bit warm at noon, they were comfortable as soon as the sun dropped. Drill for the 30-caliber machine guns was direct laying and target designation, under the direction of Sergeants DeNoble and Gehman. The 50-caliber group, under the guidance of Sergeant Doro, practiced holding leads on moving targets. Most of the 50-caliber targets are moving objects and the gunner must become skilled in determining the distance to shoot ahead of the target, or in other words, the number of "leads" to give the target. The 81-MM. mortar group worked on alignment of the gun on the target under the direction of Corporal Calmes and learned to use the lensatic compass for determining magnetic azimuth under the direction of Corporal Baer. Both corporals also gave fire orders which were practiced by the gun crews.

A regimental bivouac camp was the order of the day for Tuesday and we left our company street at 8:15 in the morning. The first battalion was as usual, assigned the duty of advance guard and the march was in anti-aircraft formation. Our first platoon was following "A" company of Marinette, the second platoon following "B" company from Rhineland and the third and fourth platoons following "C" company from Oconto. Due to our company being split up in this manner because it is a heavy weapons company, the boys make many friends with fellows from other units. The four and a half miles to the bivouac area was covered in one and a half hours and when we reached the area tents were set up and camouflaged so as to be invisible from observers who were in the airplanes which were continuously buzzing overhead and making the boys dive for cover each time the air guard, which had been posted some distance from the main bivouac area, sounded the signal that aircraft was approaching. Our company officers, Captain Plette and Lieutenant Donovan were among the officers who took flights over the bivouac area and the camp proper. All enjoyed the flights very much, and Captain Plette took movies of all the areas covered on the trip. The movie camera, which was purchased by the company before leaving home, is very popular with the men because they all will get a chance to see themselves in "movin' pictures". Cameramen for the company are Captain Plette and Sergeant Schwerbel. Private Frank Kimball tells us that he and Corporal John Kuchenbecher went to bed with all their clothes on last night so they wouldn't have to get up so early in the morning. The canvas leggings which we are wearing are new to the men and take a little extra time to put on each morning.

Koeche Finds Violets

Overcoats were worn on the march out and packs, which the first battalion has carried to drill daily, were carried again today. Despite the fact that it was cold enough to wear overcoats in the morning, the men were inside pup tents to keep out of the sun in the afternoon. Private Art Koeche surprised the group by finding violets in December.

Corporal Herb Welsh and Private "Sheldy" Hauert spent their spare time making clothes brushes out of the long pine needles from nearby trees. Hula skirts were also improvised from the pine branches and Private Hauert, Kimball, Kirk, Maxwell and Corporal Welsh entertained by doing several dances for an appreciative audience. These are just a few of the examples of the spirit of fun and good fellowship that prevail among the boys at camp.

Chameleons are a great source of fun for the men and Sergeants Max Buell and Harvey Doro have added to their collection, increasing the number to eight of the small lizards that change color to match the object upon which they are placed. Many of the chameleons caught were hard to keep and more than a few escaped from their captors. Private Diener safeguarded his pets by tying a string around the necks of a pair of them and putting the string through a button hole allowing the chameleons to run loose on his shirt but unable to escape.

Dinner was brought out to the bivouac area from the camp kitchens and we had mashed potatoes, sour kraut and wieners, bread, butter, coffee and apples. Cocoa was served. We broke camp at 2 o'clock and were given just 12 minutes to strike tents, roll packs and be ready to move. The hike back was shorter due to the fact that we had traveled in an area, heading back towards camp before we set up the tents. It was very warm and the company street with its "rubber cow" (a water bag with faucets which hangs on the company street holding drinking water) was a very popular spot.

Alice Marble Outstanding Woman Athlete

Runs Away With Vote; Gets 65 Firsts to 4 for Betty Jameson

BY BILL BONI

New York (AP)—Mr. Harmon, meet the new champion, Miss Alice Marble of California and New York. Yesterday it looked as if Tom Harmon had won a pretty decisive triumph in being named No. 1 male athlete of the year in the Associated Press poll. But the Harmon landslide shrinks to a small pebble rolling down a small hill compared with today's vote for Miss Marble as outstanding woman competitor of 1940.

Seventy-two sports experts throughout the country took part in the voting. All but seven put the tennis queen, also the winner in 1939, at the head of the list. She got 65 first-place votes, nine seconds and three thirds (this total of 77 votes being explained by the fact that several ballots gave her first, second and third place) and 216 points.

Just as she stood so far above the amateur tennis field that she finally turned pro for lack of competition (and $25,000) so she finished so far ahead in the point standing there hardly was a second. This doubtful distinction, in any event, was won by cheerful Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., who got four firsts and 89 points for the quite considerable feat of winning the United States women's golf title for the second year in a row.

Patty Berg Named
With points awarded on a 3-2-1 basis, only five others got more than three points. They were Marjorie Gestring, Los Angeles diving star, 31 without a first-place vote; Patty Berg, Minneapolis golf ace who, like Miss Marble, turned pro this year, one first and 23 points; Babe Didrikson-Zaharias, western open golf winner, two and 15; Lorraine Fisher of New York, swimming champion, none and 9; and Katie Rawls-Thompson of Florida, swimming, none and 4.

Among the minor point-winners were Mrs. Sonja Henie Topping, who hasn't been a competitive athlete for several years, but invariably gets a mention; Jacqueline Cochrane, whose nomination thus brings aviation under the heading of sports; Katherine Dewey, whose Lake Placid (N. Y.) bobsled team beat a men's combine for the national A. U. title last winter, and Hazel Walker Crutcher of Little Rock, Ark., who made the A. U. all-America women's basketball team for the eleventh straight year and won the national free throw title for the ninth time in 10 years.

Pistol Pointers

BY ALFRED HEMMING

Top-Ranking Pistol Marksmen 4. CORRECT GRIP. Standing with your left side of you are right-handed) toward the target, hold the gun in your left hand. Be sure the gun is empty, then cock it and take your preliminary grip, still holding the gun in your left hand with the thumb and forefinger around the frame as shown in top picture. That will prevent accidental discharge. The proper final grip is shown in lower picture. Note particularly that the thumb can be straight along the left side of the frame.
The grip shown brings the axis of the barrel as nearly in line with the arm as possible, to cut the effect of recoil. Place your thumb on the cylinder latch but make no effort to press your thumb against the frame. A very light grip on the handle is all that's necessary, and exert no pressure with your fingertips.
With the gun well placed in your right hand, and before removing your left thumb from in front of the hammer, rest the ball of the end joint of your trigger finger on the trigger. This completes the grip and you are ready now to take the correct shooting stance.

The Wisconsin Outdoors

HUNTING • FISHING • CONSERVATION

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

The fundamental part of the Wisconsin conservation program, to which all other of the numerous conservation projects are anchored and without which they would lose much of their value, is the forestry program, private and public. Yet that part of the Wisconsin program gets singularly little attention.

Possibly the ablest, and certainly the best informed and most articulate of the conservation leaders in the state is William J. P. Aberg of Madison, for the last two years a member of the conservation commission. In Madison a few days ago he directed attention, forcibly and eloquently, to the importance and the accomplishments of the reforestation program in Wisconsin, the progress under private auspices with public encouragement, and the achievements of various public agencies, federal, state and local.

Aberg was discussing the program with the governor at a budget hearing.

He noted, for example, that public agencies alone now control almost one-sixth of the 34,000,000 acres of timber land in Wisconsin. He pointed out that vast private forestry projects, including at least one 100,000 acre forest plantation owned by a paper manufacturer, constitutes one of the most vital phases of the forest promotion program.

Native Pulpwood in 20 Years!

He described the contrast between the green-covered north of burned over land of 20 years ago.

But most important of all, Aberg emphasized the progress of reforestation efforts with the flat prediction that in 20 years the huge Wisconsin paper and pulp industry will no longer have to look to Canada, the far west, or Scandinavia for its raw materials. In another 20 years, he said without qualification, the forest plantations of Wisconsin will be able to supply the hungry maw of the machines in one of Wisconsin's largest industries, a forecast which when realized will be of tremendous importance not only to the paper mill managers, but to the residents of the great strip of territory in northern Wisconsin who are growing tired of having their counties referred to patronizingly as "cut-over," and therefore economically dependent upon the rest of the state.

Governor Is Lectured
The governor at the conservation budget hearing got a little lecture on the aims of the Wisconsin conservation effort, and the crucial importance of the basic forestry program. And take the testimony of a close and interested observer for it, the chief was impressed—which to a good many conservation promoters who have found the governor's attitude somewhat puzzling and difficult to define will be important.

Harley MacKenzie, state conservation director, somewhat bluntly told the chief executive of the parodies on conservation which are sometimes uncovered in the areas where soil conservation and forestry projects ought to be linked. In southwestern Wisconsin, he pointed out, farmers are sometimes building soil terraces in the valleys, in a soil conservation program, while cutting the trees on the hill-sides which are the natural preventive agents for soil washouts.

Name Committee Leaders
Hugh Jackson, acting secretary of the new Wisconsin Conservation League, has sent in the list of representatives who will act as recruiting workers for the new organization in the northeastern Wisconsin area.

P. M. Parkin, Hancock, is the district chairman of the area embracing Shawano, Wausau, Oshkosh, Waubesa, Winnebago, Marquette, Green Lake and Fond du Lac counties. In charge of the district including Door, Kewaunee, Brown, Sheboygan, Calumet and Manitowish counties is Howard Leppa of Brillion, while organization work in the district made up of Forest, Florence, Marinette, Langlade and Oconto is R. F. Deerwester, Crivitz.

A number of county leaders have also been named, and others will be announced shortly. They include L. H. Kingston for Brown county, Howard J. Leppa for Calumet county, A. H. Pettigrew for Oconto county, Deerwester for Marinette county, L. J. Brunner for Shawano county, and R. A. Deisler of Winnebago and Jay Putney of Oshkosh, co-chairman for Winnebago county.

Advertising Wisconsin
Governor Heil the other day threw up an idea which has been suggested by many other persons in the last few years, but which no one has yet been able to work out effectively. It is simply that it is not exactly fair to ask all the taxpayers to contribute ($75,000 a year currently) to advertise a tourist season which benefits principally the resort industry.

The only remedy which the governor could suggest, however, was paced by Les Dietzen's big 608 series and Ed Mader's 240 singleton. Dietzen had games of 213, 206 and 185. W. Fahrback led the losers with a 526 total while Joe Dietzen scored high game of 188.

Rifle Shoots Go Indoors

Short days and lower temperatures have combined to drive indoors the small-bore rifle fans to continue the cycle of their winter sport. It was recently estimated by leading participants in the rifle game that there are now actually more indoor participants in this form of recreation than outdoor riflemen.

At any rate, the increasing popularity of indoor rifle shooting is best gauged by recent official statistics showing that some four billion cartridges and seven hundred and fifty thousand small bore rifles are sold each year. Fundamentals learned with the economical .22 are easily applied to the larger and more expensive calibres.

Winter Feeding Revived

Applications for entrance into the annual game bird feeding program for the 1940-41 winter should be filed before Christmas, the conservation department reminded sportsmen's organizations and conservation clubs this week. A $7,000 budget has been set up for this season's contest to induce a wide participation in the program to tide the game birds of the state over what will probably prove to be a severe winter.

The feed bought this year will again be either shelled or cob corn and one pound of grit for every 100 pounds of corn feed. Only in special cases as requested by conservation wardens will purchases of shocked or standing corn, buckwheat, or soybeans be made. A total of 1,600 mature pheasants and 100 Chukar partridges or blackneck pheasants will be awarded as prizes to winning clubs.

It is explained that feed stations should be near good cover such as marshes, brushy patches or ungrazed woodlots and should be easily accessible and found by the birds.

Sex Ratios To Be Studied

Broad studies on the sex ratios of both deer and pheasants, probably the foundations of the state's hunting sports, are being launched by the state in an effort to get more definite answers to questions frequently raised. In both cases males only are taken as legal game and suggestions come in from time to time that an unbalance of sexes may sometimes exist to hamper reproduction.

Miscellany

Standard varieties of coniferous trees made up the bulk of the forest stock planted in the state this year, including Jack, Norway, white and Scotch pines, Norway and white spruce. . . . Hunters are being reminded again that this is a good time to file their game census reports. . . . Sportsmen who want to hold their pheasants had better start winter feeding now, the early season snow storm launching the bird feeding season considerably earlier this year, according to W. F. Grimmer, state game management expert. . . . Birds that find feeding difficult in their home areas may be off on a food hunt and locate elsewhere, it was pointed out. . . . Publicity has been coming out of Douglas county on depredations by violators who use wire snares with spikes attached to trap deer, which deer are then, according to wardens, used as bait for wolves, which draw bounties. . . . Gabby Hartnett of baseball fame got his back in Taylor county, the local press announces proudly. . . . Up in Forest county they are telling the story of Grandpa Houle and his Pieper gun—a 44 calibre rifle barrel mounted along side a 12 gauge shot-gun barrel on the same stock. . . . It is a tradition in the Houle family to bring down bucks with the piece, and this year two of the Houle grandsons, 16 and 12 respectively, shared the ancient weapon to bring in big bucks apiece. . . .

How It Is Raised
The hunters and fishermen and others who buy licenses entitling them to take wildlife support the state conservation program—as it is limited to fish and game activities—exclusively. Collectively they contribute more than $800,000 a year. So that they may know who pays what, the following breakdown of the conservation department's anticipated fish and game budget for the next year are presented:

Trucker Highs Invade Marion

Clintonville Points For Victory Over the Pigeons This Evening

Clintonville — With three victories in four games, the Clintonville High school basketball team will be out gunning for its fourth win of the season when it travels to Marion tonight for another exhibition game. The Clintonville three victories all came in pre-conference games and their single loss was handed to them last Friday evening, 35 to 21, in a Northeastern Wisconsin conference game.

The Marion Pigeons again are represented by a strong club with almost a veteran lineup. The Pigeons showed their power in a pre-conference game by handing Seymour a trouncing. Clintonville defeated Seymour twice, but both times by small margins. Marion is led by a four year veteran in Bill Daley who performs at either center or forward.

Last year in one game the two squads played two overtimes and shot free throws before Marion finally won.

At New London last Friday, a last half spurt by the Londoners enabled them to turn back the Clintonville team. Coach Swede Johnson's Clintonville five had been riding high on the crest of a 3-game winning streak which hadn't been equaled by a Clintonville team in the last six years. The Clintonville handled the ball well but occasional lapses during the second half enabled New London to control the game. Lawrence Kruse came up with some neatly executed shots and showed up better than he has all season.

The starting lineup for the Clintonville team will see Lawrence Kruse at center, Cal Haase and Willie Sasse at forward, and Jim Breed and Fredrick Klitz at the guard posts. The preliminary game will be played between the Bee teams.

After the Marion-Clintonville varsity game the Clintonville C. Y. O. will meet the Marion Merchants.

Kaws, Bulldogs Meet Friday in Conference Tilt

New London Team to Offer Opposition for Krumm's Unbeaten '5'

Kaukauna — Undeaten in three games, high school basketballers will be host to New London Friday night in their first home conference game. The visitors have won their only league contest, defeating Clintonville, and hold a win over West Green Bay.

In beating West DePere Friday night at DePere, 38 to 18, for the third straight time the Kaws scored more than 30 points while holding opponents to less than 20. Previous wins came at the expense of East Green Bay, 36 to 15, and Waupaca, 35 to 13.

It also marked the third straight time that the points scored by Bill Alger alone would have been sufficient for victory. The Kaw center, in 19 against DePere to go into the conference lead, after bringing up 18 against Waupaca and 20 against East Green Bay.

Alger Scores 37 Points
Alger now has 57 in three games to lead the Kaukauna team. Other totals are Bill Tessin 22, Junior Wedberg 11, Willis Ranquette 10, Calvin Spice 3, Bill Van Dyke 2, Bill Knapp and Karl Giordana 1 each.

With three decisive victories coach Guy Krumm's squad emerges as one of the conference favorites, along with Neenah and Shawano. The Indians beat Neenah by only three points at Shawano last week to make it look like a tossup among the three squads. Krumm will continue to concentrate on offense this week, attempting to develop more general scoring power in the event Alger has "bad night." Wedberg, Giordana and Ranquette have yet to reach their normal scoring ability. The Kaw defense is much more advanced, with two line 4-year veterans in Wedberg and Giordana, and with Alger to share most of the rebounds. After entertaining New London in the Kaws will travel to Menasha Dec. 20, and play a non-league game with Appleton Dec. 27. The next home game is Jan. 3, when Clintonville comes to town.

Aldermen Will Open Shop Bids

Deferred Committee Reports Expected as Council Meets Tonight

Kaukauna—In addition to buying compensation insurance and accepting bids on work at the NYA workshop tonight, the council will hear committee reports laid over from previous meetings.

At the Nov. 19 session, when aldermen raised a few questions about the progress of the workshop, it was voted to advertise for bids on the shop's electrical, plumbing and heating systems. Harry F. McAndrews, city attorney, said he had seen informed specifications for these jobs were to have arrived but had not. The electrical specifications still are not here, Lester J. Brenzel, city clerk, said yesterday.

Overdue is an amendment to the police pension ordinance from the ordinance committee, embodying changes voted by the council.

The finance committee is expected soon to announce a conference between aldermen and other city officials to clear up a tax refund asked by the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company on Sept. 17. The canal company said it had been assessed for $3,620 for water power which was not appurtenant to the land and desired the refund with 6 per cent interest. The finance committee later said it had been assured by the utility commission that no loss of revenue from taxes would result from the contract signed by the city.

75-Year-Old House on South Street First of Brick in City

Believed to be the first brick house built in Appleton and the first one with a furnace, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Waldo, 804 E. South street, looks today almost exactly as it did when the Rev. P. S. Bennett, one of Appleton's early Methodist ministers, built it about 1865. Many of the old houses have been so re-modeled and added to that the original owners wouldn't recognize them, but not so the Waldo house.

Mrs. Fern Meyer and Mrs. D. H. Pierce, both of whom live at 805 W. Front street, remember visits to the house when their grandfather, the Rev. Mr. Bennett, still lived there, except for some minor changes, mostly indoors, made by Dr. O. P. Fairfield while he made his home there, they say the residence still looks like the original.

The late Mrs. Lewis A. Briggs, mother of Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Meyer, was married in the house in 1868, her father performing the wedding ceremony. She was the former Miss Emma Bennett. Later the house passed into the hands of Lawrence college, which rented it to tenants for some years. In 1911 Dr. O. P. Fairfield, then professor of art history and appreciation at Lawrence college, bought the house, living in it until his retirement in 1934. Now a professor emeritus, Dr. Fairfield resides in Orlando, Fla., but still owns the home.

Ravine Filled In
When the Fairfields moved into the house, the back yard was a ravine, in which the professor dumped 400 loads of dirt to bring it to its present level. The hedge and plants which today beautify the grounds were all planted by him.

What is now the kitchen was at one time the bathroom. The old kitchen is now a downstairs bedroom, and the bath has been moved upstairs. What is now a bay window on the south was transpired from a tumble down side porch. The dining room once had eight doors; now there are four. After the Fairfields left, President Thomas N. Barrows of Lawrence college, then dean of the college, lived in the house with his family for a little over a year before the Waldo's, present residents, moved in.

11 Remodeled Rooms At 'Y' are Completed
Remodeling of 11 rooms on the third floor of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. has been completed and the rooms are ready for occupancy, Homer Gebhardt, "Y" secretary, said today. This brings to 21 the number of third floor rooms that have been modernized, 10 having been finished in April.

ARCHIMEDES

Yesterday I promised to tell more about a famous man of ancient times. His name was Archimedes, which is pronounced "ark-ih-ME-deez."

That man lived in a Greek colony on the island of Sicily. There are perhaps as many odd little stories told about him as about any man of ancient times.

One day, 'tis said, a king gave him a problem to solve. He was to find out whether a crown which had been made for the king was of solid gold.

Archimedes puzzled about a way to find out, and for some time could not discover the answer. Then the answer came to him while he was taking a bath.

"Eureka!" he shouted, meaning, "I have found it!"

What he had found was a way to find the weight of an object as compared to its size. It seems that while he was splashing in the bathtub he realized that any solid metal object which goes into water will make enough water move upward to equal its size.

After filling a container to the brim, he let the crown sink into the water. As the water flowed over the brim, he caught it and measured the amount. In that way he learned the bulk of the crown.

Next he measured the weight of pure gold of exactly the same bulk. He found that the pure gold weighed more than the crown, and told the king that silver must have been mixed with the gold when the crown was made. Silver does not have so much weight as the same amount of gold.

Another story about Archimedes tells us what he said about levers.

"If I had a long enough lever," he said, "and a fulcrum to place it on, I could move the earth."

Perhaps that statement was true. Small weight on a long level will move a heavy object. The "if" was a very big one, however. A lever a million miles long is not likely to be made in all the course of time, and no fulcrum could rest on empty space outside the earth.

Archimedes is given credit for an olden invention which was employed to lift water from a lower level to a higher level. It is known as "the screw of Archimedes."

There is some reason to believe that he obtained the idea from Egypt, and that he simply improved the method of making the machine.

How Far Wild Duck Will Go After Meal

Urbana, Ill., (7)—How far will wild duck travel for a meal?

The Illinois natural history survey plans to find out through a tentative study of migratory waterfowl in the Illinois river valley.

Dr. T. H. Frison, chief of the survey, has asked the aid and cooperation of hunters and residents in the valley. Natural history students and technicians have observed migrating ducks as far as 45 miles from rest grounds near the river to fields where they spend a few days feeding.

Records of ducks in all sections of the valley are needed, Dr. Frison said, to give a better picture of the situation. With increasing weather, the birds depend more on waste grain scattered by mechanical corn pickers.

The total supply of wheat granaries of these nations for the season beginning last July 1 is estimated by grain men here at 2,289,000,000 bushels, of which, said, only about 965,000,000 bushels would be needed for normal consumption.

In the average mechanically run field, Dr. Frison said, a duck requires 15 to 30 minutes to pick up enough corn for a meal. Usually the ducks make two trips daily to the corn fields, leaving the lake at daylight and returning about 8 a. m., and leaving again about 3:30 p. m., and returning dark. On cold days they may be in the field all day.

One Must Be Fair and Honest to Stay in Business 33 Years

What would be done with the remaining 1,324,000,000 bushels, considering that total world supply for the season were expected to amount to only 250,000,000 bushels was the crux of the dilemma facing four governments. Here a major step each has taken to solve the problem:

Maintain Allotment
The United States—No change in acreage allotment for 1941 has been made. The federal government is supporting prices through duty on imports, a subsidy to ports to certain countries and to eligible producers based at 81 cents a bushel. Chicago, 80 cents a bushel.

Canada—The government has sealed under loan 1,000,000 bushels from circulation about a fourth of the 1,076,000,000 bushel supply for the season.

Canada—The government

delivery at fixed prices ranging up to 70 cents. Minimums are in effect, the Winnipeg futures minimum being 60¢. Board has been placed on board acceptances from due to shortage of storage. Limitation of the 1941 crop expected to be sought inasmuch as the supply of 843,000,000 bushels this season was more than 10 percent of home requirements.

Argentina Action

Argentina's minimum price for wheat is 54¢ cents per bushel. As Argentina had a poor season, the carryover, despite exports, is small. However, the carryover is the largest of 230,000,000 bushels under way. Acreage contract provided for in the grain program under which the government is buying wheat.

Australia—Farmers will be asked a price of about 56¢ with free transportation to and will share in any price increase. Acreage will be controlled this season. Australia's problem is lightened by the fact that the current crop was expected to be over 100,000,000 bushels. It might give the country a substantial surplus of about 50 bushels. Many farmers have no government relief.

Pegler Suggests Duce Take Another Look at Italian Wolf

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The comparison between the conduct of the Duce's dash-ing indomitable in Albania and that of the British in France is not very complimentary to the Italian nation under fascism, but it has been offered by some loyal followers of Mussolini in this country and therefore may be examined, out loud. They may be sorry they brought it up.

To start with the British disaster, it will be conceded surely that the British nation was caught flat-footed ever after a year of borrowed time, and that the force was a bow-and-arrow army by comparison with the great German machine. The British were attacked by methods and weapons never before encountered, and any Italian who denies that the Germans fought superbly dishonors his comrades at the other end of the axis. Nevertheless, after a hopeless stand against the greatest military force on earth the British reached the beach and, thanks in part to their luck, most of them were rescued. In any case they were under attack by the best army in the world, which is the important point to remember in turning now to Albania, where the indomitable had the initiative against a third-rate power.

To compare the German army with the Greek army is to belittle the Germans to an insulting degree and flatter the Greeks outlandishly. And even if it be conceded that, as it has been said, some of those Greeks speak with an Australian or Cockney accent, that doesn't improve the case for fascism, because the fascists already have said that the British reasoning is unwise, because it argues that the fascists were doing all right until a small force of cowards joined their enemy and put them to flight.

It should be remembered also that the Italians under Mussolini had been arming, marching, shooting, puffing out their chests, beating their chests and leaping through circles of fire and over hurdles of bayonets for 15 years. Even babies were dressed in uniforms and taught to lip that they were killers. Long before Hitler came to power Mussolini's Italy glorified war in song and story and in the public schools, and their aviation, which was their special boast, had fattened its vanity by shooting barnyard ducks in Ethiopia and Barcelona.

Italy Had Plenty Of Time To Prepare For Fight

If any nation ever prepared for conquest, subordinating all else to thought and talk of war and preparation for victory over weaker people, that nation was fascist Italy.
